Mrs. Weatherly Says...

It is rather a sad time of year, when you think about all the nice things that are gone until another spring. The leaves on the trees; most grass; sunbats; most fresh vegetables; watermelons; peaches; baseball; yes, a sad time in many ways. We here in Wallace are having to say goodbye to the tobacco men and their wives until next fall, and goodbyes are always rather sad.

On the other hand, we have been saying hello to new and old friends, our teachers, to whom we are most grateful, and behind whom I hope we all, as parents, stand 100%. Certainly we are enjoying our fall game, football, as is evidenced by the fact of the large attendance at high school and college games. And we still have our friends, the farmer and his family... and this really should be the beginning of a rest period for those people, for they have worked long and hard since early last spring. The kind of back-breaking labor that people who do not farm know nothing about. Many farmers are busy now harvesting the sweet potato crop; others are breaking up land for early planting; perhaps some are turning their attention to their homes, and looking about them preparing to do the little repair jobs that they haven't had time for all summer. The wood supply has to be replenished, and kept heaped high; feeding and care of livestock and poultry goes on as usual. Rest time?

Here in town the people begin to go to work about this time of year. Merchants have long since selected their Christmas merchandise - and are getting ready to show it to best advantage. Many homes are being built and are near completion; many weddings are set for the next two months; and all organizations are back at work after a summer's rest, putting on drives for funds, drives for membership, planning programs, suppers and other entertainments.

Don't forget to VOTE! The next four years may be very trying ones for our Nation. Don't have it on your conscience that you failed to vote.

Southern Farm Market Summary

Cattle prices were up 50 cents to $1 at the start of the week, but as producers unloaded larger supplies of grass-fed cattle, gains began to wither at midweek and cows and bull actually closed lower than a week earlier. Calf prices were irregular.

Hog prices generally followed national trends and were down slightly.

Broiler markets were irregular this week dropping 3 to 4 cents. Corn market prices declined under heavy offerings during the week.

Flue-cured tobacco marketing was fast coming to a close in North Carolina. Six markets in the Eastern Belt will be closed by Nov. 3. Sales were smaller in all sections and price averages were off $1 to $3 from a week before.

Cotton prices moved steadily higher most of the week closing on Friday at 31.38 for 15-16 inch.

COOL WEATHER RESULTS IN BIG MULLET HAULS

Cool weather on the coast coming as the October full moon began to wane resulted in the best mullet catches of the season.

Uncle Sam Says

Farming is a combination of a business and a home. And you farmers realize that a well-managed business must maintain a financial reserve as security against future needs and emergencies. This reserve is built up during the good years, like this one, when many crops are the biggest in history. It must be in the safest possible form and always available. Nothing meets these requirements so well as U. S. Savings Bonds. You know that Savings Bonds provide more security than cash because they will be replaced if lost or stolen and they also bear interest, paying $4 for every $3 invested, in ten years.

You don't mean poor li'l ol' me?

Yes, Bossie, we do mean that Tide Water's interested in you—and practically every other animal and crop on the farms in Southeastern North Carolina!
In fact, Tide Water has a special program designed to help farmers find out how to do things with less work and at lower cost. In the same way, Tide Water assists its domestic customers. All appliances are carefully checked before delivery. Trained home economists come to your home to teach you how to get the most out of your major appliances.

To give you the best possible service at all times—that's the main ambition of Tide Water and those 300 Tide Water folks who are your friends and neighbors. It should also be of interest that this service comes to you at rates as low or lower than the average for the entire Atlantic coast.
