coming to a curb, pause for a moment and then go ahead. Each curb marks the end of a block to the master. Since he has a mental map of his own community, he tells the dog which direction to go. It may be "Right," "Left," or "Forward." Essentially these are very much like the commands used in regular obedience training.

What qualifications would Rover need to possess to pass his examinations? Well, he must be intelligent and healthy. His feet must be strong; he will have to be a German shepherd, a Labrador retriever or a Boxer. Not because these are more intelligent than others, but because of certain characteristics. A canine applicant must be fourteen months old or over.

The qualification which washes out most canine candidates is willingness to take initiative. The Seeing Eye dog does not merely obey commands; he must occasionally make decisions on his own. For example, if his master comes to a manhole and orders "Forward," the dog must quickly figure out a safe way to bypass the danger. This is called intelligent disobedience.

Even though your dog might not be eligible for Seeing Eye work, he can become more useful through proper training. An affectionate reward plays a large part in the training a dog. Always remember to give him a pat on the head or a word of praise when he does a job well.

State College Hints To Home Makers

Statistics show your home is in greater danger during the winter months than at any other time of the year. This is when furnaces, heaters and electric apparatus are put into extensive operation.

Home owners should inspect their houses to protect themselves against winter fire hazards.

The logical place to start an inspection is in the basement because it's a major source of fires. Chimneys, flues and smokepipes may have collected excessive soot after the unusually cold winter last year have them cleaned out.

Check the housekeeping of the basement. Remove all rubbish, old clothes, papers that may have accumulated.

Have an electrician look over the wiring in all parts of the house. If it has frayed, have it repaired or replaced.

Don't use too many appliances on one circuit. If you're planning to add any new appliances, such as a deep-freeze unit or other high-powered unit, ask an expert electrician if the wiring can support the additional load.

Inspect the kitchen stove for all grease and soot. See that ashes are put in metal containers.

Provide a metal screen for the fireplace. Be sure that there are enough ash trays about the house.

In case of fire, get everyone out of the house.

Seeing Eye Dogs

By: TOM FARLEY

If you have watched a Seeing Eye dog guide his master through traffic, you've probably marveled at his skill and intelligence. Probably, too, you've imagined that this must be some kind of special dog, and that your own Rover would not qualify for the work.

Actually Rover might be a very acceptable candidate at the Seeing Eye training school in Morristown, N. J. For while Seeing Eye dogs must be above average in certain respects, they need not be super-dogs either. A Seeing Eye dog does not literally lead his master, but simply carries out his master's orders to guide him there. Perhaps you've seen master and dog, upon
