Mrs. Morris Grady and Mrs. Leland Grady were in charge of the program related to the study of Foreign Missions. At the close fruit cake topped with whipped cream, sandwiches, nuts, and coffee were served.

Circle No. 2 will hold its meeting in the home of Mrs. Norwood Miller Saturday night, Jan. 18 at 7 o'clock. Mrs. Otis Miller will be in charge of the program and Mrs. Herman Miller will lead the devotion.

Entertains

Mrs. W. F. Miller entertained in her home Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 4 at 3 o'clock, complimenting her son, Michael Joe, on his 6th birthday with a party. The dining table was attractively decorated and centered with a large birthday cake. The little guests enjoyed several games and received party hats and hard candies as favors after which the hostess served ice cream, and cup cakes to the 35 guests. The honoree received many nice gifts.

Hostess To Bridge

Miss Frances Mercer was hostess to members of her bridge club recently in her home. Three tables were placed for play in the living room where attractive decorations of the season were arranged. At the close Mrs. Gardner Edwards and Vance Spence received high score prizes. A delectable sweet course was served upon completion of progressions.

Beauty Aids Are Kitchen Aids, Says Mrs. America

HOUSEWIVES of today stay younger and more attractive longer than their forebearers. American women saw evidence of this at the 1948 "Mrs. America" contest at Asbury Park, N.J., which was won by Mrs. Maria Strohmeyer, the blonde, green-eyed Philadelphia housewife crowned "the prettiest of them all."

And from her they heard the reason why it is possible today to run a home and still remain youthful and alluring.

"Modern conveniences help save time and work," says Mrs. Strohmeyer. "It's a question of doing things the easy way rather than the hard way every time."

That means automatic clothes washers and dish washers, for example, which cut down the number of hours a housewife must spend in the kitchen and enable her to devote more time to keeping herself well-groomed, attractive, well-informed, and interesting.

An eye for such kitchen helps is why Mrs. Strohmeyer can find time to manage her house and still have a career (she works as a model) and take part in other activities too. She is also a good cook.

"Of course," she adds, "you still have to organize your housework so that you can get the most done in the least time." Mrs. Strohmeyer speaks from experience because like many another young couple, she and her husband are affected by the housing shortage and live doubled up with in-laws, and the women of the house share the household chores.

Laundry, one of the tasks that took most of the homemaker's time and energy in the past, holds no terrors for the lovely "Mrs. America."

Her Automatic machine that converts from clothes washer to dishwasher with a quick change of tube, has taken most of the drudgery out of Mrs. Strohmeyer's washday. But this smart young housewife has eliminated many other steps that still make washday the longest day in the week.

"When sorting clothes, for example," she says, "many women throw the clothes in piles on the floor. This makes for the extra and tiring work of bending and kneeling. And it also gets the clothes even dirtier than they were."

Mrs. Strohmeyer sorts her clothes on a work table for convenience.

She stresses using the proper amounts of soap. Too little soap will not get clothes clean, "Mrs. America" explains, and too much soap is wasteful, may cause an overflow of suds, and makes rinsing more difficult.

In a clothes tub taking a load of eight or nine pounds of clothes, one to one-and-a-half cups of granulated soap usually is sufficient for good suds.

"I believe in taking as much work as possible out of housework," is "Mrs. America's" creed. And if the charming Maria Strohmeyer is to be considered proof of her creed, then the American husband would do well to consider the long term benefits to be derived by slipping a washing machine, electric ironer or other time and work saving appliance into the American wife's stocking on Christmas morning.

QUICK CHANGE—Simply by changing tubes easily and effortlessly, you can convert this automatic machine from a dishwasher to a clothes washer. This is one of the modern conveniences that enable women today "to keep house and have a career too," says Mrs. America, who's strong for saving time in housework.

Colored 4-H Club Leaders Meet Here

A meeting of Colored 4-H Club leaders met the the Perry High School in Kenansville last Tuesday and discussed ways and means of strengthening the 4-H Club county system. Mr. W. C. Cooper, Negro 4-H Club specialist led the discussion which brought about the following on what the neighborhood leaders could do to promote 4-H club work:

Consult parents of members and persuade them to form a partnership to give the boys and girls a start; To entertain them with social affairs during the year; To form a county-wide unit of neighborhood leaders to have a Father-Son - Mother-Daughter banquet each year; To assist in preparing for such events as district federations, calf shows, sweet potato shows, pluries, Church Sundays and Achievement day activities; To assist 4-Hers in keeping record books; To make suggestions as to the best methods of producing more and better products.

Meetings of this nature will soon be held in other communities according to Negro Farm Agent R. E. Wilkins.

Card Of Thanks

We wish to thank our many friends for the kindnesses shown during the illness and death of our mother and grandmother, Malisse Graham.

Southern Farm Market Summary

Hog receipts increased this week and prices moved unevenly lower though closing prices were not off as much as prices were at the beginning of the week.

Cattle prices generally moved lower for fleshy beef animals but common range type and boning cattle were little changed.

Broiler markets weakened during the week ending January 7, with the closing tone unsettled to stronger at lower price levels.

Cotton prices advanced 2 points in Friday to Friday trading in the 10 spot markets. At the close of Friday, Middling 15-16 inch cotton averaged 32.31 cents a pound.
