(By Mrs. Ella Womack)
 Funeral services were held for Andrew J. Parker, 60, of 827 Florida Ave. N. E. Washington, D. C., who died suddenly at his home on Sunday, Dec. 26, and was buried Wednesday, Dec. 29 in Glennwood Cemetery at 2:30 in Washington.

He was born in Turkey, N. C. Mr. Parker was a deaf mute. He was educated at the N. C. State School for the Deaf at Morganton. Later he married and moved to Washington, D. C. in 1916. He started in business there as a wallpaper hanger and later was employed by the Building Suppliers Firm during 1942-1944. He was a carpenter at Patuxent River Naval Base at Cedar Point, Md. where he received the Navy "E" Award for war work.

Later he became a cabinet maker under the supervision of Civil Service in Washington, D. C. His works include the doorway of the Blair House and the Inaugural Stand Balustrade used by Franklin D. Roosevelt and which now will be used by President Truman. He completed his carpentry apprenticeship in Wilmington, N. C. He was loved by his many friends and kin throughout N. C. and surrounding states. He was well known for his kind deeds and devotional love. His parents died when he was but a small boy and his uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. John Hearty and sister, Miss Charity Hearty of near Warsaw raised him. He is survived by his wife Mrs. Maud E. Parker; daughter, Miss Louise Parker of the home, a son, Hunter A. Parker of 5105 Fisher Drive, Temple Hill, Md. Three sisters Mrs. Mittle P. Williams of De Ridder, La., Mrs. Charity P. Kalmar and Miss Malina C. Parker of Faison; one brother, Samuel E. Parker of Warsaw; and two grandchildren.

The purity of her life, the cheerfulness of her presence, the pureness of her character, the kindness of her dealings with others, and her love and loyalty to her loved ones and friends will be held in loving remembrance by all who knew her.

The lessons you taught us our weaver of life, claimed all the fabrics of gloom; so only the good, the pure and bright, passed over the breast of your loom. Now the shuttle is still, and silent the loom, the toiler has passed beyond strife; but we shall keep you enshrined in our hearts, our weaver of a beautiful life.
