HERE IS WHY-

We Think It So Worthwhile.

You would, too, if it were your privilege to work with our young men. Some of them still have that thin, slender look which comes from growing tall so fast. Some of their faces have filled out to smooth contours of young manhood. It is good to see the flash of a smile and a twinkle in their eyes as they confidently go about their preparation for life. These are the men of tomorrow.

They are growing not only into physical maturity upon the athletic field, but in mind, and in skill in human relations, and in soul.

They come by sometimes to talk with us. John is thinking of a career in the diplomatic service. Bill wants to be a coach. Jim hopes to be a doctor. Halph has never quite regained his strength from a year in a German prison camp, and he cannot decide about his future plans. Jack wants to go under the care of presbytery as a student for the ministry.

They had a good time together in the Homecoming Day festivities . . . They listened so attentively yesterday at chapel when a visiting missionary from the candidate department of our foreign mission committee talked about life enlistment . . . There are 199 of them attending today. They are the hope of the future.

We Think It So Worthwhile.

We are trying to renovate and improve the dormitory. We want so much to complete the chemistry laboratory building and the cafeteria and the library. Our students need these things.

We Think It So Worthwhile.

The Synod of our Presbyterian Church in North Carolina founded this college and has carried on this service to youth for many years. At the last meeting Synod took action "That Synod recommend to Churches and individuals the Presbyterian Junior College in its effort to secure $50,000 to aid in its repair and building program."

We Think It So Worthwhile.

You who read this, as you go into the new year, as you count up your income tax deductions of what you have given away during the year, as you realize that needed building funds cannot be secured unless you help, as you send your check to have part with others in this ministry to youth, as you have an inner sense of joy of giving — will think it worth while, too!
