Entertain S.S. Class

Mrs. Reuben King entertained her Sunday School Class with a winter roast at her home Friday night. Games and contests were enjoyed with Freddie Gene Small and Thomas Murphy winning prizes and all had a wonderful time.

New Chevrolet Displayed Here

Large crowds viewed the new Chevrolet on display at the attractive show room of Jones Chevrolet Co. here Saturday. Officials were on hand to explain the many new features and records were also used to inform the throngs that poured into the show rooms.

Souvenirs were passed to all. A telegram dispatched to headquarters in Detroit about 4 p.m. stated: "Public responding wonderfully to invitation to see the new Chevrolet. Declare it far superior to anything Chevrolet has yet had to offer."

Hostess To Circle

Mrs. Aubrey Turner was hostess to a regular circle meeting of the Women of the Church at her home Tuesday night. Mrs. Ike Stroud presided and reports were heard from the different secretaries. Mrs. Aubrey Turner was in charge of an interesting program. The meeting closed with mishap. At the social hour refreshments of potato chips, whipped cream with cake and coca colas were served to the 19 present.

Everyday North Carolinians - - - men, women, children -- commit crimes against society and are taken into custody of the law. Every day some of them are sentenced to prison, jail or the gas chamber. Every day the press of the state gives prominent space to crime and court trials. Every day hundreds of men and women, the young and the old, endure the strain of existence behind prison walls. Every now and then some human being is strapped into the chair in the state's gas chamber and deprived of his life.

To most of us this is all a simple matter of sin vs righteousness, plus excitement of "solving" the crime and moral satisfaction at seeing

"justice" done. But, is it that simple? Public law is based on moral law and moral law is based on the concept of human worth. This worth is not something restricted to a few people. It applies to all members of the human race. The basic purpose of law should be to consider and promote human values, and this means recognition that the person who commits murder is as much a human being as the person who is murdered. Usually the individual who violates the law is not recognized as a person. Instead, he is used by the state as a means to an end and this end does not involve, except in a negative sense, the idea of human worth.

But the individual is something more than murderer or thief. He is a human being who has been buffeted by certain forces, factors and influences and has failed to develop the human divinity that is his real self. His crime is a tragedy for him as well as for the persons and laws whom he has wronged. And his tragedy does not concern just the courts and police. It concerns all of us. Men commit crime against society only after society has first committed crime against men. We have an obligation to consider the influence which entered into the life of the offender and consider wherein we, ourselves, through neglect and indifference, are responsible for his failure. A crime is not "solved" until the forces and factors which shaped the development of the offender have been brought to light. "Justice" is not done until our own share of the blame has been affixed, until the offender has been given intelligent help that will enable him to achieve his potentialities and until constructive efforts are made to remedy the conditions which led him and others to crime.

Anyone familiar with a court room knows that it is a place of suffering, tragedy, neglect and indifference. Most of the accused are ragged, poor, uneducated. All have, in some way been frustrated by the society in which they lived.

North Carolina, society, all of us, have much to answer for; and sharply to the forefront on the bill of indictment is the callous and well-nigh criminal indifference we show our school-age children. We allow them to drop out of school long before they should, and year after year are swallowed up by nobody knows what.

Southern Farm Market Summary

Reduced cattle and hog shipments to southern markets this week failed to check early week price declines and closing hog prices were off 25 to 75 cents per 100 pounds, with cattle selling weak to as much as $2 lower.

Broiler markets were generally weak and lower during the week. Florida bean prices still showed the effect of recent freezes with levels at shipping points generally higher than a week ago.

The week witnessed an advance of $2.45 a bale in the average price of Middling 15-16 inch cotton on the ten spot markets. Friday's average price was 32.95 cents a pound, compared with 32.46 a week earlier and 34.52 cents on the corresponding Friday a year ago.

Can Black-Draught help that dull, dopey feeling?

Yes, Black-Draught may help that dull, dopey feeling if the only reason you feel that way is because of constipation. Black-Draught, the friendly laxative, is usually prompt and thorough when taken as directed. It costs only a penny or less a dose. That's why it has been a best-seller with four generations. If you are troubled with such symptoms as loss of appetite, headache, upset stomach, flatulence, physical fatigue, sleeplessness, mental haziness, bad breath--and if these symptoms are due only to constipation--try Black-Draught.
