What Spins and Spins and never moves?

"A top", your children will tell you. But so does a jenny in a cotton mill, of course! As hundreds of threads are spun, the spindles move faster than the eye can see, but the machines itself stands still. This, and all other operations in a cotton mill, take power - lots of it. Tide Water is proud of its industrial customers like this cotton mill. They add a lot to the well-being and prosperity of the whole community! In fact, Tide Water stands ready to help any organization in Southeastern North Carolina to persuade new industry to move here. The more industry, the more money in circulation, the more jobs, the more demand for the products of our other factories and farms - in short, the better and more prosperous our community!

Just as it does for its domestic and farm customers, Tide Water seeks always to give the best service possible to its industrial customers. We have reason to think that our reputation for good service and reasonable rates has been a factor in attracting so many new industries to Southeastern North Carolina during recent years.
