State College Answers Timely Farm Questions

Q. How can I best tell if a new collar fits my horse?

A. A properly fitting collar should be snug, but not too tight, or too loose, at top where it rests on the neck. There should be space on the sides to run the fingers to collar cap at top of collar, but no more. Collars that are too narrow at top, or on which hames are buck led too closely together at top, will pinch the neck and chafe it, causing sores on the sides near the top. If a collar is too wide, it will work back and forth, sideways, chafing top of the neck and cause a sore to start there. Another frequent cause of sore necks is too much weight on the neck yoke, as when a mowing machine has too light a driver to balance the weight of the tongue. Fasten a weight under the seat, so the combined weight of it and driver will balance the tongue. It is necessary to get collars that fit and then be sure the hames are the right size for the collar.

State College Hints To Home Makers

Every device, however small, that saves time and labor in getting meals and does the job better is worth the consideration of the busy housewife. Small savings add up in homemaking as an industry!

For example, mixing salad dressing in the salad bowl before adding the salad is a small way to save washing an extra dish -- and time.

Shaking in a paper bag is an easy and economical way of flouring or sugaring pieces of food.

Melt the fat for muffins or baked puddings in the baking pan to save time and extra dishwashing. Start melting the fat before measuring other ingredients so that it will be ready and the pan cool enough when the batter is ready.

CONTROLS

Regardless of what type tobacco plant bed is used, control of insects and blue mold is necessary to give early, healthy plants that will permit the grading of plants and the setting of the crop at the proper time.

An established clean water supply convenient to the plant bed is a much needed improvement.

Farmers Should Check Their Fire Extinguishers

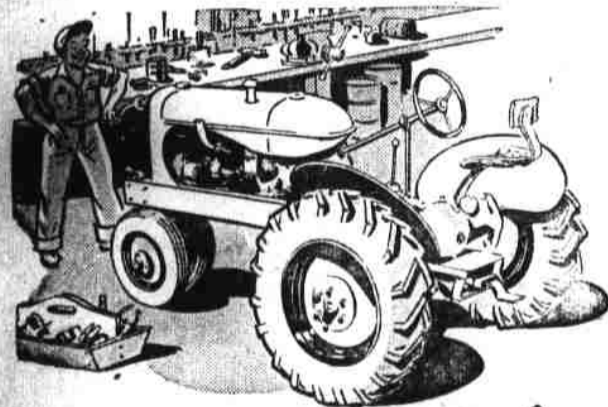

Local farmers are advised by L. F. Weeks, County Farm Agent, to check their fire extinguishers to be certain they bear "responsible seals of approval."

Agent Weeks said his warning was based on reports from Fire Protection Institute, a national fire safety organization, that many "un-approved" extinguishers have been made available during the past 5 years.

"Fire fighting equipment that bears the label of Underwriters' Laboratories or Factory Mutual is generally regarded as tops in the fire protection field," the agent declared. "Unfortunately, many extinguishers now being sold have not met and cannot meet the rigid specifications set by these two testing agencies. To depend on such un-approved extinguishers may prove disastrous in an emergency."

Pointing out that an undependable extinguisher is about as useful as a counterfeit dollar, Agent Weeks suggested that one member in each family be designated to check all available fire protection equipment.

For real fire safety, you should have an approved type of extinguisher and should know how to use it most effectively.
