Duplin Representative's Bill Brings Up Old Question

By: LYNN NISBET
In Kinston Free Press
Raleigh, Mar. 23—The bill introduced last week by Rep. Lewis Outlaw of Duplin authorizing land surveyors to prepare deeds for real estate brings to the front and old question about "unauthorized practice of law."

CHANGES — Under existing statutes, which many people contend were written by and for lawyers, no person other than a licensed attorney can prepare a deed or other instrument of conveyance for real estate. The legal profession has protected any infringement upon this reserved right. The Outlaw measure would allow a registered land surveyor to prepare papers for division or transfer of real property in cases where he did the surveying.

OPPOSITION — Spokesmen for the State bar say the lawyers will oppose this loosening of present restrictions on two grounds: First they feel its enactment would result in many cases of faulty titles and cause a lot of confusion; and, secondly, they will resist any efforts to open the doors for the recognized practice of law by anybody not formally licensed by the State Bar examining board.

FEAR — One lawyer, who said he was speaking only for himself and not for his profession, is inclined to favor passage of the bill. His idea is it will result in so much litigation that he and his fellow practitioners would make a lot more money out of the lawsuits than they could hope to make out of preparing deeds. He is disposed, however, to go along with the other lawyers in opposition to the measure because of fear it would open the door for a lot of other amendments to present regulations of law practice.

Lacy Weeks Says . . .

"Spring is clean-up time - time to clean out farmstead hazards that might cause injury and loss of man-hours on the farm", County Agent Lacy Weeks of State College Extension Service declared this week.

"A place for everything and everything in its place" is a good slogan, the county agent said. He added, the largest single cause of injuries, other than the personal factor of poor judgment, is disorder. Removing trash collections reduces the chances for fire and destroys "rat hotels."

"If every farm family would conduct a spring clean-up campaign both indoors and outdoors," he declared, "it would go a long way toward eliminating fire and accident hazards, provide a more healthful environment, and conserve food which is badly needed in many parts of the world."

Trail of The Cross
Lesson for April 3, 1949

THE TURNING-POINT In Jesus' career was dramatic. But the few friends who were present did not then realize what it meant. On a vacation journey, Jesus put to his most intimate friends this question: "Who do men say that I am?"

Peter's answer, "Thou art the Christ," may sound obvious to us, but was not obvious then.

It was sensational so much so that Jesus did not want the publicity that would come to him if that name "Christ" were freely circulated. For the word "Christ" meant nothing less than "King." To the Romans it would sound like treason; but to the Jews it would sound like Judgment Day.

When Peter said, "You are the Christ," he was implying also: "You are immortal. You are the coming conqueror of the world. You are not in the same class with any other man. You will do for mankind what no other hero has ever done."

God's View and the Devil's
ON ALL THAT glowing devotion Jesus' next announcement fell like icy rain. In the ears of those friends of his it sounded like the bell of death. Never before had Jesus told them anything like this, and they must have found it hard to believe. For he had not a word about a throne, nothing about success, nothing about mastering the world. Quite the contrary. He must "suffer many things . . . be rejected . . . be killed." If they heard the words "rise again" too, the words made no impression.

For Jesus had announced what to them seemed impossible, absurd: He, the Christ, would be killed! Small wonder that Peter broke out—No, No! But Jesus would not compromise. He even called Peter "Satan" for thinking as he did.

The Christian church agrees with Jesus, not with Peter. We realize today, as Peter himself did afterwards, what the Cross of Christ means.

Buddha, founder of a very different religion, died in old age of over-eating. Can you imagine Jesus doing that? Suppose Jesus had taken Peter's advice and made arrangements to retire comfortably where he would never see a cross? Then we never should have heard of him. He would not have been worth hearing from.

One Cross is Not Enough
YES, WE KNOW now that the Cross of Christ is important. But we are a good deal like Peter, after all. For we do not listen to what we do not like to hear. And the next words of Jesus, on that historic occasion, must have sounded then as they do now, most chilling of all. "Whoever would come after me, let him take his own cross and follow me." In Jesus' time no one was ever seen carrying a cross who was not already under sentence of death and on his way to be executed.

Translated into modern terms, what Jesus said would sound as horrible as this: Any man who wishes to follow me must take his seat on the electric chair . . . must take his place in the lethal chamber . . . must put his neck in a noose . . . and follow me.

One cross is not enough. There must be other crosses. My road is a death-march, I want for my followers only those who are willing to take the same trail.

Trail of the Cross
SUCH WORDS sounded harsh then: they do still. But in the light of the centuries, we can see what Jesus meant, better than that little band of frightened men around Jesus who did not want to hear the words "suffer . . . die." Jesus was not advocating pain for pain's sake.

Why did Jesus set his own face toward the cross? The Christian answer is, He did it for others. Now what is wrong with the world today? It isn't that we don't wish our neighbors well; but the trouble is, we don't want to be bothered, our good-will is too tender to stand any strain, we will do anything for other people provided it doesn't hurt.

But the world can be saved only as men and women imitate and multiply the spirit of the crucified Christ.

TIDE WATER SERVICE
starts right here!

Stands to reason that you've got to ask for something before you get it. That's exactly what's happening in this picture. The lady has come in to ask for service. That's right where Tide Water service starts! Most folks think of credit men as suspicious people and rather dislike having to interview them. Not at Tide Water! Turns out that Mr. Williams, the gentleman shown above is one of the best-known and best liked people in the whole territory. And so are the other people around the Tide Water system who interview people who want to use our service.

And what a real service Tide Water customers get, right from the moment they request it! Tide Water, you see, has the idea that only the best possible service at the lowest possible cost is good enough for their customers. And there are more than 420 loyal, hardworking neighbors of yours in the Tide Water family who see to it that this idea is translated into service for you!
