Take Your Family To Sunday School

By: JAMES L. KRAFT

Almost everyone who has occasion to meet and work with young people - as I have had the privilege of doing for a good many decades - is struck by one eternal quality recurring in the youth of every generation. That quality is eagerness; eagerness to do, eagerness to achieve; eagerness to learn. It is a veritable Niagara Falls of energy and potential power.

The boys and girls of today have this wonderful quality, this new hope for the world. Within themselves, they have the potential power to rebuild the world nearer to heart's desire. If they will it so, they can make this a productive and peaceful world. But young people can utilize their tremendous energies to produce good in the world only if they are able to harness them and put them to work efficiently and intelligently. Helping to turn these mighty energies into the true power of spiritual adulthood is the work - the sole work - of the Sunday schools of our churches. Nowhere else are the training and spiritual education and lessons in self-discipline and self-realization available to our young people. The work of our Sunday schools therefore becomes a primary consideration of every responsible adult in this nation.

Our public schools do an important job of helping to train young minds. There are countless civic programs which help to train young bodies and coordinate young muscles and teach some of the lessons of good sportsmanship. These have the deserved support of most of our citizenry. Yet without spiritual education, a sound background or moral and religious training, all other courses of training fail.

In this most important of all the responsibilities of education - that of training the mind and spirit - countless millions of adults are woefully neglectful or indifferent or both. To provide for the schooling of a child's mind, to provide for his physical health, yet to neglect the health and growth of the soul within him is to rob him of his birthright - and cripple his spirit.

Until every boy and girl, and every man and woman in this nation has become an active participant in a Sunday school and church program, we are neglecting our most important national resource - the spiritual power of our people.

It is not enough merely to send your children to Sunday school. TAKE them to Sunday school this Sunday - take them regularly - join in the work of the church of your choice - help to make that work more far-reaching and significant - put your own faith to the test - and you may discover in yourself new spiritual strength which will bless your own life, that of your family and the community in which you live.

HOW OLD IS YOUR HEN?

Floyd Smith tells this. Years ago it seems his hens went on a family raising strike. Mrs. Smith just couldn't get them to sit still long enough to hatch out 16 eggs apiece. At that time the Smiths had plenty of meat. A neighbor had plenty of hens who would set but had no meat. So, Mrs. Smith swapped a piece of meat for a young hen. The hen had four biddies tweeting behind her. Mrs. Smith soon began setting the hen. Floyd took a liking to the fowl and evidently the hen liked Floyd also. Each morning when he went to the corn crib at feed time the hen would jump from her nest and go to the crib door for her corn. After filling her craw she would set back on the nest for a long snooze at setting. Floyd fed the old hen the last time on April 5th. 12 years after he received her. During the time he estimates she hatched and raised in the neighborhood of 500 biddies.
