 when a boy around Mount Olive and on the Neuse at Seven Springs, places I spoke of in my book 'Small Town South'. Remember my referring to the late Sheriff Taylor of Kinston, events in Kenansville, the 'Big House' on the river at Seven Springs? "Yes," I replied, and "Sam," I said, "I remember your referring to going up the Neuse to New Bern. Had you forgotten that the Neuse flowed down to New Bern? Do you remember the old playground and hang-out we boys used to have at Seven Springs? It's now a State Park, the Cliffs of the Neuse. Mr. Lon Davis of Mount Olive and the late Lionel Well, Sr. of Goldsboro owned these hills and gave them to the State for a park. A place where everyone could enjoy themselves, and study nature's handiwork. "Yes, I know," said Sam. "And I know that if I can bring back and portray on the stage in 'The Duplin Story' these heart-warming days, those days of struggle and hardships, mixed with laughter and gaiety, when our fathers and forefathers built Duplin County, when the beginning and development of Sarecta, Kenansville, Faison, Calypso, Warsaw, Magnolia, Rose Hill, Wallace Beulaville and all the places in between were laid. Sarecta faded out, you know, if I can recast the spirit of a pioneering people to show to those of the present generation why they should be proud of their County of Duplin; if I can show to our neighbors in Mount Olive, Seven Springs, Pink Hill, Wilmington, Goldsboro, Clinton, Kinston and all Eastern Carolina, for that matter, some of the few things that took place in the growth and development of Duplin County the home of your and my ancestors—big man from the city, nor a Lieutenant Commander in Uncle Sam's Navy. He's just plain Sam Byrd, a grand old of Duplin". In the drug store Sam liked the Kenansville Coca Cola made by Amos Brinson, the proprietor, and Harold Jones, chief clerk, who married Sam's cousin over Seven Springs way.

Sam left his adopted daughter in Mount Olive with "Aunt Tootle" until he could get the "Big" house in readiness for her. The young folks, as well as the elders, want to meet "Pat". They want to see what an attractive English born girl looks like. "Pat", incidentally, will play a leading role in "The Duplin Story".

Questions & Answers On Tobacco Referendum

Q. What is the authority for the flue-cured tobacco referendum?
 A. The Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, requires the Secretary of Agriculture to proclaim marketing quotas on flue-cured tobacco for the marketing year beginning July 1, 1950, if he finds that the total supply of flue-cured tobacco as of July 1, 1949, exceeds the reserve supply level as defined in the Act. The law provides that the quotas will be in effect only if approved by growers. A referendum in which growers of flue-cured tobacco will vote will be held Saturday, July 23, 1949.

Q. Who is eligible to vote in the referendum?
 A. Any person who has an interest in the 1949 crop of flue-cured tobacco as owner, tenant, or share cropper.

Q. May a person who has more than one farm producing tobacco vote for each farm?
 A. No one will be entitled to more than one vote.

Q. How many voters must approve quotas to make them effective?
 A. At least two-thirds (66 and 2-3%) must approve before quotas can be in effect.

Q. Is it necessary for voters to cast ballot in their own community?
 A. No. But his ballot may be challenged if his name isn't on the list in that community.

Q. On a farm operated by several members of the same family, which are entitled to vote?
 A. Only those who have a bonafide status as operator, share tenant, or share cropper.

Q. What questions will appear on the ballot?
 A. 1. Are you in favor of quotas for three years, 1950, 1951, and 1952?
 2. Do you favor the quota for one year 1950, but oppose quotas for three years?
 3. Are you opposed to any quotas?

Technicians And County Agents Meet With Breeding Expert

On July 20, Mr. N. M. Dietrick, Manager of the Southeastern Artificial Breeding Association at Asheville, met with the Coastal Artificial Breeding Association, Incorporated's insminating technician and the County Agent in Kinston, also at Melvin Cording's residence in Wallace, to discuss the Artificial Breeding program in the County and to help with any problems that might be pressing.

Mr. Dietrick has had vast experience in the field of artificial breeding. He has spent considerable time in Greece setting up an Artificial Breeding Program there, so he comes well informed on the subject.

Professor J. A. Arey, Head of Dairy Extension of North Carolina State College, and Professor J. F. Brown, Dairy Specialist, will accompany Mr. Dietrick on part of his tour of those counties in North Carolina where semen from the High Index Proved Sires of Southeastern Artificial Breeding Association is being used. Mr. Dietrick also plans to meet with some of the directors of the Associations using the semen of the stud at Asheville.

The Coastal Artificial Breeding Association, Inc., through the use of semen from these Sires Proved Great, is helping materially in achieving the objective of Southeastern Artificial Breeding Association to increase the efficiency of the production of human food and to disseminate inheritance proved good through the wide use of high index proved dairy sires.

Coastal Artificial Breeding Association, Inc., is one of 49 organizations affiliated with South eastern Artificial Breeding Association in furthering the use of artificial insemination with semen from Sires Proved Great, at a price the farmer can afford — and by so doing, helping to improve America's dairy herds and giving to all dairymen of North Carolina, Virginia, Georgia and Florida, either through an affiliated association or directly from the stud at Asheville.

Marketing Quotas Are Necessary Go Out And Vote Saturday

Raleigh, N. C. — Marketing Quotas and Tobacco Associates' export program are "necessary to the prosperity of the flue-cured belt," T. W. Allen, Chairman of the Grange's National and State Tobacco Committees has declared in urging a 100% vote in the referendums on Saturday, July 23.

At the same time B. F. Williamson, Jr., Chairman of the South Carolina Farm Bureau's Tobacco Committee, said "a market for tobacco is the life of the business."

"We solicit the cooperation and hope to have the continued support of every flue-cured tobacco producer in the July 23 Referendums. Both programs are necessary to the prosperity of the flue-cured belt," Williamson pointed out that "Tobacco Associates was started, paid for and is run by farmers and others who have an interest in getting our tobacco used throughout the world."

"While production control and government support loans are necessary for fair prices," he said, "a market for tobacco is the life of the business," and added that he was sure Tobacco Associates would continue to get the "support it has had and should have."

Cow Man To Preach Grove Church Sun.

Melvin G. Cording of Wallace, secretary of the North Carolina Jersey Cattle Club, will preach at Grove church here Sunday morning. Mr. Cording is well known in Duplin, especially among the farmers.

Grove church has been without a regular pastor since Rev. Morrison left. Mr. Cording is an ordained Presbyterian minister. Before coming to Wallace he held pastorates in New England. Eye trouble forced him to retire from regular pulpit work but he has agreed to help out the church in Kenansville until a minister can be secured. Mr. Cording is a good speaker and holds an interesting outlook on life today. He always selects interesting subjects. Who knows, he may preach a sermon one of these days on cows that you farmers would like to hear. There are certainly many good sermon subjects in the milk cow. Mr. Cording is anxious to see his many friends in and around Kenansville out to services next Sunday.

Speeders Lose

What would your chances be of walking away, uninjured, after driving your car off a 10-story building?

The physical effect is the same, according to the Department of Motor Vehicles, as if you hit a solid obstruction on the highway at 60 miles an hour — and the odds against your getting out of it unharmed are about the same.

At this speed your chances of being killed are about eight times greater than they would be if you were traveling at 20 miles an hour. The higher the speed, the greater the chance for death in an accident.

"Speeders Lose" is more than a slogan. It is cold, statistically-based summing up of what drivers and pedestrians in about 10,000 accidents learn every year — the hard way.
