November Is Full Fall In North Carolina

While other sections of America are settling down to winter in November, North Carolina is finishing off summer business and in the midst of full fall harvest and play with the frost barely on the pumpkin.

With the greatest army of color seekers in history turning from high peaks of the Blue Ridges and Great Smokies to the Little Saluda, South and Brushy mountains, burley tobacco harvest is underway in the mountains. On the 19th Asheville celebrates with a festival and next day West Jefferson does the same; from the 23rd through 26th Waynesville has its Burley Festival. On the 2nd and 3rd fat stock shows are on in Asheville; on the 11th through 13th the Needlework Guild gathers there. Starting on Thanksgiving Day, the famous THYON HOUNDS put on hunts and field trials each Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday.

Coastal festivities center around re-activation of Old Hatteras Light with a big celebration. New Bern has two dog shows during the month. Washington has a Farmer's Day on the 11th and Southeastern North Carolina Beach association makes annual fishing rodeo awards on the 29th.

And don't forget the Armistice Day Celebration to be held in Warsaw on November the 11th.

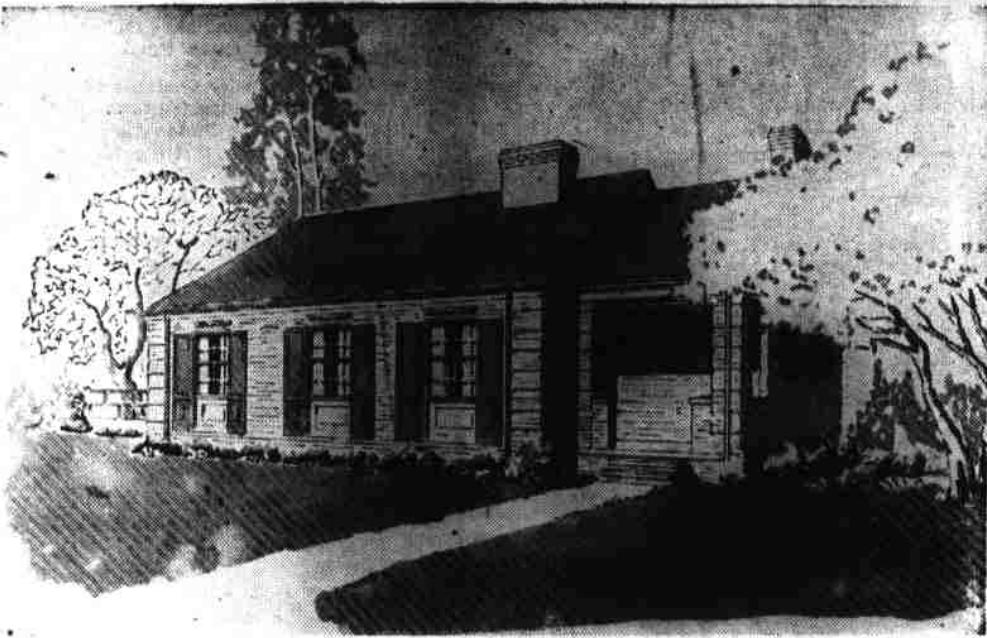

WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW ABOUT TB RESEARCH

In universities and laboratories throughout the country, America's scientists are conducting an unceasing war against tuberculosis. This year alone, more than 22 separate yet coordinated studies are being aided by the National Tuberculosis Association and its affiliates—made possible by your purchase of Christmas Seals.

Under investigation are such questions as the chemistry and virulence of the tuberculosis germ, factors influencing the course of early tuberculosis, the reason some strains of germs become resistant to streptomycin, and the effectiveness of a combination of drugs in tuberculosis treatment.

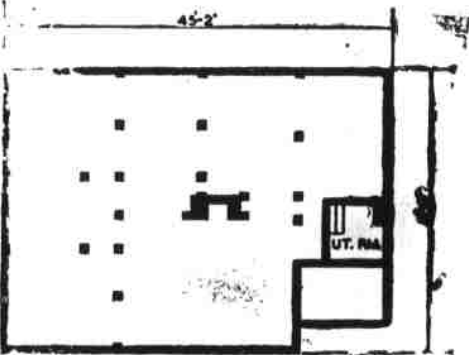

Since 1904, the overall TB program has helped cut the death rate by eighty-five per cent—yet TB still kills more people between 15 and 34 than any other disease.

So, please, buy and use Christmas Seals—send in your contribution, today.

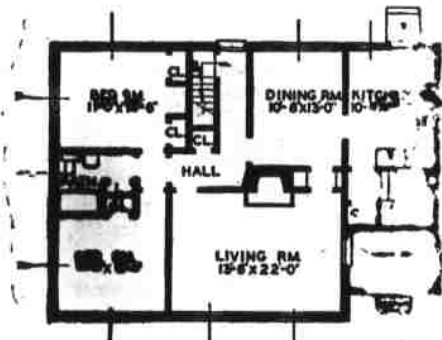

BRICK HOUSE PLAN NO. 406—Designed by John Floy Wicker, Architect, Greensboro, N. C.

This is one of 37 homes designed by leading Carolina Architects and featured in "Carolina Homes," a plan book published by Brick & Tile Service, Inc., Greensboro, N. C.

FOUNDATION PLAN

FIRST FLOOR PLAN

This design answers the demand for economical yet durable construction in a home. The result is a home that will be welcomed in any community.

Free use of windows furnishes plenty of light without doing away with the feeling of privacy. The entrance is put on the porch in order to maintain the splendid balance created by the unique window treatment.

This house maintains a touch of older American architecture in its general appearance and room arrangement, yet does so without sacrificing its appearance as a modern house. The living room is located in the front of the house so that its occupants will not feel isolated from the flow of outside events. The bedrooms are located on the side of the house away from the kitchen so that household noises will not be audible in them. For the small family there is ample room for full and easy living.

Uncle Sam Says

School bells are again ringing and thousands of children are back in classrooms all over the country. And many of these little boys and girls are crossing the thresholds of learning for the first time, starting the great adventure of beginning an education in a free land. They can go all the way, and that means college, if they learn to save. The School Savings Program teaches them to be thrifty and children who learn to save will certainly be better citizens tomorrow. You parents—be sure there is a School Savings Program at your school and be sure too, that your children are investing in U. S. School Savings Stamps.
