Quails

I stood at attention and looked across the way, In the stillness preceding the close of day At a covey of quail that came into view, Winging leisurely across the blue. I was thrilled at the scene I looked upon, Now winging near me in the soft evening sun; Lovely speckled birds moving along Chirping in concert a sweet happy song.

The rear bird is prettiest, there's beauty in the air, A friendly battalion with no ill will there. Only the pleading eyes of the rear bird as he passes by, Winging speedily from me on through the sky.

Quickly a rock whizzes through the air, There's a flutter of wings and a bird there Mortally wounded by a sports-loving shark With a stone that went straight to the mark.

We're having a special dinner at our house tonight, Amid the soft glow of candle light. The others think it's wonderful, but I stand apart. I recall the bird's eyes and it touches my heart.

Autumn

Who lit the torches in the flaming branches Of the maples across the way? Who cut the diamonds In the early morning dew For the sun to slip away? Who sent the birds on wings of flight That chirped in nearby trees? Who painted the gold and brown Upon the flowers and leaves For my hungry eyes to see?

Beatrice W. Wallace, B. F. Grady.

Reddy Loves Thanksgiving Turkey!

Thanksgiving is a holiday that is observed only in America. It is a symbol of our struggle to develop a new nation into the greatness that we now enjoy. That's why Reddy loves to celebrate this holiday. Because, Reddy, too is a symbol... a symbol of all of the hard work and struggle that the private Utilities Companies have gone through to help our same beloved America grow. We have set aside this day to give thanks for all the blessings that we now enjoy. Let us be thankful for the many industries, who, through inventions, development of mass production and individual enterprise have raised our standard of living to be the best in the world. Reddy is just one symbol of this Private Enterprise. Remember, this same private enterprise made us the great nation we are today! Let's keep American Business Free!
