Want A Family? Children Cold!

The local Welfare Department has a sad and needy case on its hands. Recently a wayward white mother and worthless father in Duplin took to the "way of all flesh" and ignoring all laws of man and God threw their six little children to the hounds of hell. They launched on a career that ended as it should, the mother with a two year sentence in the state prison for women and the father plying the county roads. The children are in the hands of the Welfare Department. They have no home, no relatives who care for them, no clothing to keep them warm. The Welfare Department has no money to provide for them. The workers in the department are nearly at their wits end. If anyone has any old clothing, sweaters, shoes, jackets, etc., please send them to the local Welfare Department at once. Dear reader, remember, but for he grace of God these children could be yours. There are six of them and they need homes. If taken now and properly cared for they might have a bright future ahead and a life worth living. If neglected they may have to be taken care of by society later on, beupright citizens. The six range in ages: boys, 14, 11, 8, 3 years and

N. S. L. I. Dividend Comes January

The special dividend on National Service Life Insurance which will be paid starting in January offers veterans an opportunity to further increase the investment in themselves and their dependents. By paying their insurance premiums on an annual basis, or even a half year at a time, a veteran can realize substantial savings in payments and simultaneously remove the necessity of paying each month

Many veterans are planning to use their entire dividend payment to pay up their insurance for a time equal to the amount of the dividend.

Those veterans who have permitted their insurance to lapse can have it reinistated by merely paying two months premiums and ta-king a physical examination. Those with service-connected disabilities can take a physical examination without having those disabilities counted against them, provided they apply before Dec. 31st. They can select any amount of insurance from $1,000 to $10,000 in multiples

DOG TALES The Happy Dog - By TOM FARLEY-

A MASTER craftsman in handling words, John Gould has written some wonderfully good stories about his life and neighbors in maine. But in the current issue of the Reader's Digest, which carries so many unusually fine articles on dogs, is reprinted his short piece, "Where Dogs Belong", which originally appeared in the Christian Science Monitor. And with this piece we are in 109 percent disagreement.

Baste theme of the article is that country dogs are happier than city children too. But his opinion that animals should not be "kept" in cities seems to me to be carrying things a little log far.

Dogs are happy wherever the are loved and cared for. The amount of space at their dispositions are to the first about nothing at all to with fit. Mr. Could says he has happy dog that runs in the wood all day, alcept in the wood list.
