THE BRONTE is a basementless house. This is provided for by having an insulated floor slab being laid directly on a bed of gravel. In order to fit a narrow lot, the utility room, with heating plant, storage and laundry facilities, has been placed to the rear of the house. The plumbing is grouped in the adjoining bathroom, kitchen and utility room.

The kitchen cabinets are placed on two walls leaving a large dining space. All of the rooms open into a small central hall, which also has a linen closet. There is a coat closet in the living room and wardrobe type closets in the bedrooms. The utility room has a large storage cabinet, coat closet and closet for keeping supplies.

The exterior is finished with wide siding and an asphalt shingle roof. The front entrance door is protected by simple lattice work.

The overall dimensions are 30 feet by 32 feet with the main body of the house 24 feet deep. The floor area is 822 square feet and the cubage 10,686 cubic feet.

For further information about THE BRONTE, write the Smith House Planning Bureau, St. Cloud, Minn.

SPORTS AFIELD

By TED KESTING

The jack rabbit is a wonderful animal. There are people who can see wonder only in that which is rare or fantastic. But surely this one, who has every hand against him must have what it takes to survive—not only to survive, but to abound! If he is a common animal, he possesses uncommon and uncommon equipment to endure claims eyes wide open.) However, in common parlance he is a rabbit and the name wounds only the feelings of a purist.

The jack rabbit is protectively colored, too. In various parts of his vast range, he takes on different hues. But we haven't come to his most wonderful equipment: the ability to live without water. In the west, the desert jack may live a whole rabbit span of existence without tasting free water.

Then there is his amazing nibbling capacity. It is no wonder that he is indicted by ranchers and farmers with a long list of charges. Some estimates have put the damages of these hares to range grasses as one-third the total pasturage and browse. An acre of alfalfa may be cut down in a few nights, during years of rabbit abundance.

Probably no shooting except quail shooting, when the quail "bomb" explodes, requires such quick reaction, such split-second marksmanship, as when old Jack unexpectedly bounds out of a bush, and whirrs away with antelope speed. And no other shooting of any kind of true game animal can be done with such a free conscience. The sport is great, the flesh is fair eating, the farmer benefits, and there are always more.

Chickens, Eggs Head Food List

Broilers and fryers, eggs, and dried beans and peas are "February Firsts" on the monthly list of foods plentiful on Southern markets, Miss Hilda Clontz, home agent, said this week.

Warmer weather, larger laying flocks, and increased egg production per hen are the main factors in the February egg supply.

Last season's dried bean production was a record, and stocks of most dried peas are ample for all consumer demands. Fresh vegetables for the month are beets, cabbage, carrots, lettuce, spinach, and especially spring greens, will be plentiful she added. Canned and frozen corn are listed as the best buy in canned foods.

Tree nuts -- mainly almonds, walnuts, and filberts are plentiful.
