That feeling of BELONGING

Hard to beat, isn't it? That feeling of being accepted—of being a respected part of your community.

A business—like a man—is judged by the way it does business. To be accepted it must, of course, be law-abiding. It must fill a community need. It must create jobs... pay taxes... meet its obligations... keep its self respect.

A case in point is the business of selling beer—a self-regulated, legal business. Because it meets all these requirements, it has come to belong.

And having merited your support and respect, this business is continually working to retain your confidence.

How?

By cooperating with State and local enforcement agencies and advocating strict control of all establishments where beer is dispensed.

By seeing to it that, in every possible way, beer continues on its own merits... as a respected part of the business and social life of your community.
