Pink Hill Seniors Hear Chancellor House of U. N. C.

Chancellor Robert B. Rouse of the University of North Carolina in a commencement address before a near capacity crowd at Pink Hill School Friday night appealed to the 15 graduates to concentrate on their reading ability, writing and speaking in their preparation for useful and worthwhile lives. He was presented by Lynwood C. Turner.

Chancellor House opened his remarks with three lively square dance tunes on his trusty harmonica. He used his love for music as a vehicle to drive home the need for recreation and enjoyment of life in general. Hobbies are essential to the well-rounded person, he observed.

The capacity for love, be it for another person, one's work, one's community, one's nation or for God, determines one's ultimate success in life, he said. He cited God as the great standard of all successful and worthwhile living.

Pointing to the University and other educational institutions as agencies that have reached out to offer their resources to all types of people, Chancellor House declared that it is up to the individual to determine whether he or she will use these facilities to best advantage. He emphasized the fact that one does not have to attend college to get great benefits from high educational institutions through their institutes, and extension agencies.

In stressing the essentials of learning, the speaker declared that the ability to read for enjoyment as well as education, is basic to preparation for modern living. He stressed also the need to know how to express one's thoughts on paper for others to read. There are many things in life which demand the ability to write intelligently, he observed. But the ability to speak fluently and forcefully is one of the greatest of all arts, he declared. People use it today for propaganda purposes and will use it even more as television becomes more widely used. He appealed for an understanding of the ways speaking is used and for the knowledge to use it correctly in conservation and public appearances.

Special music was offered by a trio, Miss Audrey Gaylor, Mrs. Jack McPhaul and Miss Lou Ann Davis who sang "In The Still of The Night." Rev. Thomas Horner gave the invocation and the program began with the processional and ended with the recessional.

Principal Frank Wiley presented diplomas and awards to Valedictorian Betty Jean Davis, Salutatorian Barbara Howard and "Best Citizen" Rachel Blizzard, and diplomas to Howard Davis, Beulah Edwards, Fred Harper, Mary Nell Kennedy, Dortha Sanderson, Carolyn Smith, Peggy Jo Stroud, John E. Taylor, Jr., and Mark Sutton.

Bobby Hicks was chief marshal and others were Erzell Sanderson, Dorothy Taylor, Florine Deaver, Lou Anne Davis, Betty Howard, and Mary Edna Harper.

HARPER ENTERS MORE LITTERS IN SOW-TEST PLAN

Preston Harper of Deep Run, has entered three additional litters of purebred Duroc pigs in his breed's official sow-testing program. This makes a total of seven litters under test in the Harper herd.

"PR" of Production Registry, as the official testing program is named, is now being followed by all major hog breeds and is based on weights of litters at 56-days to test both the production and suckling ability of the breed sow as well as gaining ability of the nursing pigs. Extensive statistics prove that heavier 56-day weights mean heavier 180-day weights and are of interest to all farmers desiring seed stock from "officially tested" strains of faster growing purebred hogs.

SPORTS AFIELD

If your steel fishing rod needs a new paint job, there are several preliminary steps you should take whether you intend to paint by brush or spray.

First, sand down old finish with emery paper, keeping wet at all times. Sand with fine paper until perfectly smooth. Wash rod carefully and dry. From now on, don't touch with fingers as the natural oil in the hands may prevent paint from adhering properly. If rod gets oil on it, wash off with gasoline before painting.

Incidentally, don't try to have a broken steel rod welded. It cannot be done satisfactorily, even by the rod maker.

guides, ferules and other parts on which paint is not wanted. More than one coat of most auto enamels will be needed, with a rubbing down of each coat, including the last. When the finish is hard, wax and polish with a good floor or auto wax. Frequent waxings help preserve the finish.
