TO ELEANOR GAY

(A BEAUTY QUEEN)

Your ascent is like a dreamy melody of song,
Like ascending water silvered by moonlight.
In trailing gown you are more lovely than an ivory statue to a pagan goddess
A flower tall, in lovely bloom is not so full of grace as your slim form.
You are a joy; You are agarden of roses gleaming after a rain;
You are a lovely bundle of heart's desire
In a maiden's dream;
You are a vessel of purest gold achored to the shore.
