Hedy Lamarr AS Delilah

Winner of one of the most coveted roles in motion picture history, exquisite Hedy Lamarr had unwittingly auditioned for the part a full six years before producer-director Cecil B. DeMille actually signed her for his Technicolor epic, "Samson and Delilah", a Paramount picture that opens next Sunday at the Model Theatre in Beulaville. One of Miss Lamarr's early Hollywood efforts was the role of the bewitching Tondeleyo in a picture called "White Cargo". The censors did the best they could to tone down the Viennese star's high-powered sexiness, but they were only partially successful. There's no way of concealing Miss Lamarr's exciting, provocative beauty. Half-a-dozen years later, when DeMille was conducting a nationwide search for an actress to play the lead in his latest biblical film, he screened "White Cargo" in his private projection room. After only one look he was interested, and after a second glance convinced that he had found the perfect "Delilah" in the person of luscious Hedy Lamarr.

"SPEEDY" SERVICE MOTOR CO. A TERRIBLE NIGHTMARE. POP I DREAMT I WAS DRIVING ALL OVER TOWN LOOKING FOR A PARKING SPACE. WOTS SO BAD ABOUT THAT? THERE WERE FORTY FIVE FIRE PLUGS IN EVERY BLOCK THATS ALL! (PHOEN? YOU THINK THATS BAD! WHAT IF YOU DREAMT YOU HAD AUTOMOBILE TROUBLE AND THERE WASNT A SERVICE MOTOR CO. TO TAKE IT TO FOR REPAIRS - THEN YOU WOULD BE IN A FIX!)
