'A LOOKIN' UP

By: A. M. DAVIS

Faison has suffered a tremendous loss in the passing of one of its best known and a most loyal citizen. It is a great loss and it will take us a long time to overcome if ever. In the passing of Roy Cates, or "Mr. Roy" as most of us called him, we feel somewhat at a loss as to who to go to when some future plan for the town is at stake. His was always a helping hand and a source of sound advice.

When Jim Hill started the ball rolling in bringing the experiment station to Faison, Mr. Roy was the link between our state officials and our local people. He was well known in Raleigh and a friend of Governor Scott.
From all indications Mr. Roy liked people. When we met him on the street he would always have a friendly greeting and a cheery word for all. When we visited his office he was always the same. Regardless of how busy he was he could always find a little time for a chat with his friends.
Mr. Roy had no children of his own. Most people under similar circumstances have little time for the children of others. But not so with him. His tireless efforts on behalf of the Boy Scouts is seldom surpassed. When they needed money for some purpose he was always the first to try to raise it for them. What public subscription failed to raise he would often make up the difference out of his own pocket.

He was a charter member of the Faison Lions Club and was an ardent supporter of its programs of community betterment but due to ill health in the past few years was unable to attend meetings regularly and was put on the member at large status. The Lions as well as the community, are going to miss him.
When Mr. and Mrs. Roy Cates came to Faison years ago they bought the little run-down house back of the Faison Motor Co., and set about making it into a livable home. They furnished it with antique furniture, painted and landscaped the grounds. Today it is one of the show places of Faison. Just as they had it as they wanted it Mrs. Cates first and then Mr. Roy passed on.
Faison, as they have missed her, is going to miss him.

CAPITAL REPORTER

Scott Summers

Raleigh, N. C. - North Carolina's famed 30th Division of the National Guard can expect a tap on the shoulder from Uncle Sam by Oct. 1, according to a report here.
Most of the Guardsmen hereabout had breathed a little easier when they heard a Tennessee combat team of the 30th had been called up. They figured that meant the division as a whole would be well down the list.
Your Capital Reporter hears via the grapevine, however, that the 30th is high on the list and can expect a call to active duty before the football season gets out of its diapers.
Other Washington gleanings via

Raleigh:
Deferments for married men will soon end. The entire deferment policy will be spelled out more clearly when government leaders set the balance between industrial and military needs for skilled personnel.
Federal income tax will be upped on individuals by 10 to 15 percent, effective in the last three months of 1950 and for all of 1951. This means the individual -- or little -- taxpayer will be hit first, since excise and excess profit taxes will not come until after the November elections, if at all.
Edwin Gill, commissioner of revenue until he backed the loser Charley Johnson in the last governor's race, is slated for the job of U. S. Collector of Internal Revenue for North Carolina.
The present collector -- Charles H. Robertson -- is expected to retire soon. Gill is expected to be named to the federal post, with headquarters in Greensboro, before the end of the year.
Gill was in Raleigh last week, reportedly lining up support for the job.
Here's some behind the scenes dope on Governor Scott's second visit with Oscar Chapman, secretary of the Interior, Tuesday in Washington.
As you know, the governor took along a delegation of some 19 State officials and other big shots to meet with Chapman, the State's senators and congressional delegation to get a picture of North Carolina's power potential.
Governor Scott has been hollering about a shortage of power in the State for some time now. Two weeks ago, on his first visit with Secretary of the Interior Chapman, the governor found out that North Carolina was behind other states -- even those of the South -- in power output. This has resulted, he was told, in the State being bypassed by industries seeking a new home.
The story goes that Kerr Scott hit the ceiling when he learned this from federal officials. He was shown aerial maps and other surveys that showed the State's power output potential.
So he asked for the second meeting with Chapman, took along some of the "unbelievers", and went to Washington to see what could be done.
Ironically, it was less than a year ago that Scott made a speech in Lumberton at the dedication of Carolina Power and Light Company plant.

Sutton -- in a paid advertisement took the governor to task, stating that there was "no existing shortage in power in Carolina Power and Light Company territory."
Yet, less than eight months from that day Sutton authorized an enlargement of the Lumberton plant, then less than a year old.
Some folks now are asking this question: Is there a shortage of power or a shortage of vision?
Someone needs to shed a little light on the question.
Incidentally, CP&L's Louis Sutton now is president of the Edison Institute, national research and propaganda agency for the leading power companies.
As spokesman for the electric power industry, Sutton recently assured President Truman that the private power companies are prepared to furnish "all the power that the country needs."

The pre-campaign jockeying for the 1952 gubernatorial race is taking some funny twists. Osceba Charley Johnson, a Charlotte resident less than a year and seeking nomination as a "westerner", is gaining favor with the Old Guard.
Capus Waynick, Governor Scott's campaign manager and a cat with nine lives, politically speaking, reportedly is trying to make up his mind which way to jump. He's made no secret of the fact that he would like to be governor. But he's been hearing stories about Scott losing favor and may decide to cut away from the Scott camp completely. In the past, he has always landed on his feet when he jumped the traces -- and he was in town last week testing the wind to see which way to jump.

Another opinion sampler, Secretary of State Thad Eure, reportedly getting ambitious, too, no longer is riding the bridge on the ship of state. He's out paddling his own canoe.
Meanwhile, State Treasurer Brandon Hodges is sitting on the sidelines watching it all. He ain't mad at nobody, and seems to have the faculty to keep both sides happy. Some of the political experts in these parts seem to think that Hodges is in the best position of the bunch.
You probably heard about Governor Scott recently fulfilling a childhood dream when he bought a bunch of Shetland ponies. They're down at his Haw River farm and he's planning to raise them.
One little nine-year-old girl -- Gwendolyn Burgess of Bailey -- heard about it, too. Last week she wrote the governor and wanted to know how long it would take her to buy a pony from him at the rate of 90c a week.
She said she got a dollar a week allowance, but gave a tenth of it to her church so 90c a week was all she could spare.
"I thought," she wrote, "by the time you had some ponies to sell, I might have enough money saved up to get one."

The governor was out of town, but the pony-cost question was waiting his return.
The State Highway Commission won't start any more road paving come cold weather. There are two reasons: one is the need to keep all roads passable, and the second is the good chance of a hard winter -- the last two having been extremely mild.
Main reason the Highway Commission okayed the uniform mailbox plan was a recent visit to Haywood county. Folks up there already have put up the uniform mailboxes, and it's plumb purty to ride along the highways there nowadays.
You can expect a good fight in the 1951 General Assembly over the sales tax.
"It looks to me like our job is to try and keep the services we're doing without boosting taxes."

The new suggestion is a straight 3% sales tax on everything. This, he opined, would make the tax easier to collect and "fair to all". This legislator claimed such a move would bring more income to the State, too. He said so much of the current sales tax is practically uncollectable because the merchants handling some taxable goods and some untaxable goods.
"You just can't collect all the proper tax from a place like that," he said.
Anyway, it ought to be a good scrap.

North Carolina's building program might take a turn for the worse. Six months ago the governor told the boys to go ahead and let their contracts so they could get on with the building. Being human, they put it off for awhile, nobody else foresaw the Korean situation either -- now it looks like it might mean putting off for a good long while since higher prices and material shortages have developed.

FOOTBALL PRACTICE UNDER WAY

The Faison and Calypso High School Football team is down to hard work in preparation for their first game with LaGrange on Sept. 18th. There are eleven boys from Calypso practicing with the team. The squad under Coach Wetherington numbers about 30.

700 BOOKS

Seven hundred new books will be available this fall for circulation in Duplin County. Miss Dorothy Wightman, County Librarian, is now hard at work cataloging each book.
Five hundred of the books are for children. New favorites for them are two books in the Orange Biographies series, Peter Stuyvesant and Amelia Earhart. There are preprinters for the younger tots.
The adult books include many of the latest best sellers. Some of the titles available are: "The

When completed these books may be obtained from the Kenansville Public Library and the Duplin County Book Mobile service.

Dr. Nelson Is Feature Speaker

Dr. W. L. Nelson, head of the Soil Testing Division of the State Department of Agriculture, spoke to county agriculture workers at the Kenansville Agriculture Building Monday night.
His speech dealt with the proper procedure and methods for taking soil samplings for more accurate analysis. The more accurate the test the better the lime and fertilizer needs of the land can be determined.

The laboratory in Raleigh tests over 83,000 samples each year with over 800 samples from Duplin County. Most tests in Duplin have been made from pastures. Mr. L. F. Weeks stated that it was hoped the tests would be extended to other crops.
Free of charge to Duplin County farmers are soil sampling boxes and mailing cartons which may be obtained at the Agriculture Building.
