Mrs. C. Banks McNairy, III.

McNairy - Gooding Vows Spoken

In a formal wedding, Miss Ella Theresa Gooding, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. G. V. Gooding of Kenansville and Charles Banks McNairy, III, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. B. McNairy, Jr., of Goldsboro, were united in marriage on Saturday, September 30 at six o'clock. The couple spoke their vows by candlelight in Grove Presbyterian church here with the Rev. J. G. Morrison, former pastor now at Ronceverte, W. Va., officiating, and the Rev. James M. McChesney of the First Presbyterian church of Goldsboro, assisting.

Church decorations included arrangements consisting of Southern smilax, Woodward fern, and Kentia palms. A pair of single cathedral candles in candelabra marked the position of the bride and groom and formed an improvised altar before a background of other seven and five-branched candelabra and gracefully arranged baskets of full white flowers. The windows and balcony were arranged with strings of smilax.

Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. D. M. Royal, organist, of Salem, and Edward Smith, soloist, of Goldsboro presented a program of nuptial music.

The wedding processional was played by Miss Sally Newton, cousin of the bride.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore an original gown of ivory satin. The fitted bodice, fashioned with a yoke of illusion, was enhanced with intricate simulated seed pearls and ended in scallops. The full skirt fell into a cathedral train. The sleeves ended in calla points over the wrists and were richly embroidered with seed pearls. From her matching satin coronet sprinkled with seed pearls fell a full length of French illusion.

The bride's bouquet was a green and white foilage arrangement featuring variegated colodium and nephytis leaves and a pendant of stephanotis vine—its own flower clusters and a pair of green orchids being the only flowers in the arrangement.

Miss Eleanor Poe, of Greenville, S. C., former roommate of the bride, was maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Mrs. Richard Arey of Winston-Salem, former suite mate of the bride; Miss Rebecca Michie, of Fayetteville, cousin of the bridegroom; and Miss Kathleen Powell of Goldsboro. The junior bridesmaids were Miss Sylvia Gooding, sister of the bride, and Miss Gall Newton, cousin of the bride. All the attendants wore strapless gowns of gold satin and champagne net over taffeta, with matching stoles and gold satin mitts and coronets. The maid of honor and bridesmaids carried leaf bouquets of autumn colored croton and other varicolored follages with streamers of grape ivy and variegated vines. The junior bridesmaids' bouquets were of foilage and pompong chrysanthemums, fashioned after those of the other attendants.

Cheryl Smith, of Fayetteville, cousin of the bride, was flower girl. Her dress was of aqua satin and net-over taffeta fashioned like that of the senior attendants. Ringbearer was Thomas Leslie Lee, Jr., of Kinston, who wore formal dress. Honorary bridesmaids were Mrs. A. R. Bland, Mrs. William Craft and Mrs. Seymour Teitelbaum, all of Kenansville; and Miss Mary Cleaves Stenhouse of Goldsboro.

C. B. McNairy, Jr., of Goldsboro, was his son's best man. Ushers were Guy V. Gooding, Jr., and Stephen C. Gooding, II, brothers of the bride, George Jeffreys of Goldsboro, John A. McNairy of Goldsboro, brother of the groom; Clifton Daniel, Jr., and Richard P. Griswold, Jr., both of Goldsboro.

The bride's mother wore an aqua dinner gown of chiffon and lace scattered with rhinestones and a matching two-tone hat and mimosa gloves. Her corsage was of yellow cimbidium orchids. Mrs. McNairy, mother of the groom, wore a gown of wedgewood blue chiffon and lace, an original designed by Ben Cam. The bodice, of imported Chantilly lace, had an off-the-shoulder neckline. The skirt of pure silk chiffon had a wide panel of lace, which gave a redefining effect. Her headdress was a plateau hat of matching material. Her corsage was a white orchid with a purple throat.

Immediately following the wedding, the parents of the bride entertained with a formal reception at their home.

The home was thrown ensuite for the occasion. Guests were greeted on the porch by Mr. and Mrs. Fason McGowan, and at the front door by Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Jerritt. Introducing the receiving line were Mr. and Mrs. N. B. Boney. Dr. and Mrs. D. M. Royal invited the guests into the dining room. Mrs. Leslie Lee, Mrs. A. T. Outlaw and Miss Eleanor Southerland presided at the punch bowl. Miss Lillian Long assisted by Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Newton presided over the bride's register.

Goodbyes were said to Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Brinson. Others assisting in serving were Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Alphin, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Smith.

Following the reception, the couple left for a wedding trip to unannounced points. For traveling the bride wore a Belinson Original suit of wool in mink shade with bronze bugle bead lapels, with a matching hat and brown accessories. With this she used a mink scarf and the orchid from her bridal bouquet.

Mrs. McNairy attended Peace Preparatory School in Kveigh following her graduation in 1944. She attended Queens College in Charlotte where she was a member of the Kappa Delta Social sorority. Since her graduation in 1948 she was employed with the Wayne County Welfare Department until August 1950.

Mr. McNairy attended the Riverside Military Academy in Gainesville, Ga., where he graduated in 1946. He also attended the University of North Carolina where he was a member of the Phi Gamma Delta social fraternity. He is now employed by the T. A. Loving Co.

Following their wedding trip the couple will make their home in Goldsboro.

Couple Honored
The parents of the bride entertained the wedding party and out-of-town guests at a buffet supper prior to the rehearsal Friday evening.
