Despite reports circulated by hopeful bureaucrats, the nation's small independent businessmen are almost equally divided on government control of prices and wages, rationing.

A nationwide poll just completed by the National Federation of Independent Business on this issue, and others, reveals 44% for; 34% against; 22% undecided.

These thousands and thousands of ballots, sent as usual directly to Congressmen, are causing many a solon who voted these powers to the President embarrassment.

The rapid, severe price jumps have hurt small businessmen even more than consumers.

But apparently there is a reluctance to jump from the frying pan into the fire.

It is felt if government had shown competence in dealing with defense, taxation, other grave matters, there would be more confidence in government intervention in the domestic economy.

Now, there seems to be one big question.

"What has the greater destructive power—the present inflationary trend which may be stopped by American common sense—or bureaucratic meddling which once started may never make sense, or never be stopped?" This attitude of small businessmen might be the most significant vote of no confidence yet registered.

On the same ballot independent businessmen voted almost unanimously for a law that will require co-operatives to pay a fair share of taxes.

©National Federation of Independent Business

The vote was 64% for; 14% against; 14% undecided. Businessmen have the support of the Treasury Department, anxious to plug loopholes which have been permitting a billion dollars of tax income to escape yearly.

This issue will take the spotlight in Congress soon. And as usual, the lobbyists opposing any action will shed copious tears over the "unwarranted attack on the farmer."

Actually, bona-fide farm co-operatives would be affected but little. Farmers themselves will be shocked at the coming disclosures which will show that abuse of the present regulations has been the highroad by which many big companies have escaped taxes.

Congressman Huber of Ohio created some discomfort the other day for Stuart Symington, chairman of the National Security Resources Board. Symington has just appointed a 12 member mobilization committee that will function when, and if, price-controls, rationing is started.

The Congressman pointed out that labor, agriculture, industry and the public are represented on the board. But the distributive industry, employing 12.5 million, second only to manufacturing, is not represented. And the distributive industry will have to pass prices, collect ration coupons, do most of the work.

But this obvious deficiency was apparently ignored.

An one newspaperman remarked, "The trouble with Congressman Huber's comment is that it makes common sense, and in Washington, the keynote is 'bills for theories, but not one cent for practical experience'."

State College Hints To Home Makers

A penny in a fuse socket can set the house afire. The fuse is a protection. When it "blows" it warns that wires are overloaded. The trouble may be too many appliances on one circuit, or some defect in an appliance or cord. The burned out fuse cut off the current, thus avoiding fires from overheated hidden wires. Overloaded wires have smoldered inside of walls for days before breaking into flames. Fires in the night or when families are away have been traced to such a start.

The right size fuse protects the wire. For light circuits a 15 amp-
