Six of the 9 national championships awarded in the straight truck, the tractor single-axle semi-trailer and the tractor tandem-axle semi-trailer classes were won by drivers of Dodge trucks.

Richard Wold, of Minneapolis, drove a Dodge GA-152 (1 1/2-ton) truck to win first place and the national title in the straight truck event. R. D. Wallace, of Charlotte, N. C., drove the same truck to win third in that event.

All three places in the tractor tandem-axle semi-trailer event were won by drivers who drove a Dodge YA-142 (4-ton) truck. O. E. Chapman, of Denver, won first place and the national title, Robert Rudesill, of Minneapolis, won second, and Harry W. Pollock, of Baltimore, won third.

Frank Kirkpatrick, of Portland, drove a Dodge JA-128 (2 1/2-ton) truck to win third in the tractor single-axle semi-trailer event.

Twenty-one state champions who had won their titles in state eliminations while driving other makes of trucks switched to Dodge in the national finals. Their decisions were made after they drove Dodge trucks on a New York practice course. Ten manufacturers offered trucks for the 86 contestants in the national finals. Thus more champions chose Dodge than all other makes combined.
