State College Answers Timely Farm Questions

Q. At what weight should hogs be killed for use on the farm?

A. Hogs can be killed over a wide range of weights, but those weighing from 200 to 300 pounds will generally prove most satisfactory for use on the farm.

The animals should be taken off feed at least 24 hours before slaughter, although they should have access to all the water they will drink. Removing feed before slaughter makes the job easier and results in a better bleed.

Q. How can parasites in sheep be controlled?

A. Internal parasitic infestation of sheep may be reduced by use of annual grazing crops such as soybeans, lespedeza, the small grains and winter legumes, and by rotation of permanent pastures. For further details, see your county agent.

4-H MEMBERS GROW BACON TYPE HOGS

Production of Tamworth hogs is enabling 4-H Club members to meet the increasing demand for high quality bacon. They selected this bacon type because Tamworths grow rapidly and can feed themselves almost entirely on pasture. Tamworths also farrow large litters and feed their pigs until weaning time.

Southerland, Grace Baker, and Joe West.

CHRISTMAS 1950
ARMY - U. S. AIR FORCE

Howard Chandler Christy's Christmas poster for the U. S. Army and the U. S. Air Force is one of the most appropriate to the times ever displayed. Entitled "Give Us the Faith and Courage of Our Forefathers," this fine poster portrays Uncle Sam kneeling in prayer with the light coming from above. Painted originally for the Layman's National Committee of New York City, this Committee made it available on a public service basis to the Army and Air Force Recruiting Service for reproduction as a national Christmas poster. It has already had most encouraging response. Mr. Christy has done several others for the Armed Forces, including "Freedom Is Your Business," which appeared nationally during October and November of this year. He has also exhibited a fine public poster in commemorating the
