Legislative Summary

Highway Safety
 Sponsored by the governor's Highway Safety Committee, HB 52, another automobile inspection bill, was introduced this week, this one calling for 60 state-operated inspection lanes. A public hearing on this bill and HB 41 is scheduled for January 31. HB 94 would jail a drunken or drugged driver for a minimum of 5 days rather than for 30 days as proposed by HB 1. SB 51 would expand prohibition against driving under the influence of narcotic drugs to cover driving under the influence of any drug. Another bill (SB 52) is designed to strengthen the hit-and-run statute by requiring motorists involved in any kind of accident to remain at the scene until exonerated.

Stream Pollution
 In his biennial message, Governor Scott recommended that positive action be taken to curb stream pollution, and this week the Stream Sanitation and Conservation Committee made its report. On the basis of 5 years study it proposed HB 53 under which a 7-man commission would have authority (subject to review by jury and court) to supervise the disposal of wastes which impair the best use of water and to order offenders to cease or treat discharge to protect the public interest.

Work of the Judicial Council
 Introduced in the House this week were 25 bills drafted by the Judicial Council, established in 1949 to make a continuing study of the administration of justice. Among other things these bills provide for an administrative assistant to aid the chief justice in assigning superior court judges under the constitutional amendment ratified in November, define the jurisdiction of special and emergency judges, allow solicitors to appoint assistants (to be paid by the solicitor) when unable to serve themselves, prohibit keeping court papers from public scrutiny, and permit juries to take evidentiary objects with them into the jury room during their deliberations.

Work of the General Statutes Commission
 The General Statutes Commission, whose mission is the continuous study and correction of the North Carolina code, has recommended the passage of 23 bills. One of these bills reflects the commission's feeling that its duties should be enlarged to study and propose changes in substantive as well as procedural matters. One bill rewrites the statutes relating to execution, revocation, and probate of wills; another prescribes a detailed procedure for the examination of parties before trial. One describes how to compute degrees of kinship; still another allows a husband to sue his wife in a tort action. Notaries-public will be interested in one which restates their powers.

Proposed Amendments to the National and State Constitutions
 Once more the General Assembly

has received a bill to ratify an amendment to the United States Constitution proposed by the 60th Congress. Two years ago this amendment, designed to prevent a person from being elected president for more than two terms, failed to receive approval here. In this state the Constitution makes the governor and lieutenant governor ineligible to succeed themselves in office. If enacted, HB 102 would propose to the people an amendment to the state constitution to allow these officials to succeed themselves once but not twice.

HB 82 proposes another amendment to the North Carolina Constitution: Candidates to fill vacancies occurring in certain constitutional offices within 30 days immediately prior to a general election would not be voted on in that election, as at present, but in the one following. Meanwhile a governor's appointee would fill the post.

Bills of Interest to Local Officials
 Relieving the overcrowded record rooms in courthouses is the object of HB 58. If enacted this bill will allow county commissioners to obtain equipment to photograph official records. Reproduced copies or films would supplant the originals which, if not desired for the state archives, could be destroyed. SB 35 would enlarge the power of town policemen to permit them to carry prisoners to and from jails outside the corporate limits and to attend court outside town. SB 10, which has passed the Senate, would make it clear that the clerk of superior court is empowered to take bail in all criminal cases except capital felonies.

of Wilmington Presbytery. After a dinner to be served in the dining room of the Wilmington church at 7:00 P. M., Tuesday, January 30th, a program featuring Mr. Johnson's address will follow. Election of officers and disposition of various reports also will comprise an important part of the program.

"We are very much encouraged by the news of growing participation by laymen throughout the Presbytery in this vital part of the program of our Church," said Mr. Diefel. He asked that all Presbyterian laymen plan to attend the session and reminded them to advise Mr. J. A. Scott, 26 Kenwood Avenue, Wilmington, how many men may be expected from each Church.

Duplin Must

 Come the day when all were fed and granaries were full. From coast to coast and from Canada to the Gulf fields were under cultivation. It was only then that a few caught the vision of another need that of producing tools and fiber here in our nation. These few reasoned rightly that industry and manufacture would help balance the nation's economy. Industry could provide the farmer with machinery and clothing and agriculture could provide industry with food. By locomotive and truck, industry moved its goods to all points of the nation and, temporarily, that provided a reasonable balance. However, it was soon discovered that the per capita income of those communities in which industry and agriculture were joined together was much higher than in sections where it was either all industry or all agriculture. Industry soon learned that by breaking down their mammoth concentrated operations into smaller units and establishing these units in rural areas where operating costs were less expensive and availing themselves of the excellent labor found in these areas they profited as well as the communities in which they located. Proof of this may be found in our own county of Duplin in which industry is just seeking to establish itself. The per capita income of our county in 1948 was $582 and in the same year Iredell county, agriculturally situated as are we, had a per capita income of $956. A difference of almost $400.00! That difference was possible because Iredell long ago recognized the need of industry and did something about it. Factories are humming in Iredell and it is quite safe to assume that the difference in per capita earnings of the two counties in 1950 will see Iredell extended the gap by perhaps as much as another $100.00. Our 40,000 people of Duplin average less than $1.60 daily.

For the purpose of increasing our share of available income the Duplin Industrial Council was born. It has as its aim the assimilation of facts in Duplin of interest to prospective industry, a labor census, geographic conditions, water, roads, transportation. With the hoped for co-operation of all people within the county these facts will be compiled in booklet form and made available to all interested persons. This is not a task for the council alone, but it is the responsibility of every citizen. Duplin has a great potential future but too few appreciate its many assets and assembling this information pertinent to the county would in itself be a worthwhile project in further acquainting our citizens with our resources. Industry is on the march! Only by alert and timely action can we expect to secure our fair share. And only by securing it can we expect the per capita income of our people to increase and from its increase will come a better way of life.

Title Selected For Essay Contest

A Cumberland County school principal has submitted the winning title for the 1951 Cooperative Essay Contest, M. G. Mann of Raleigh announced today.

V. C. Mason, principal of the Massey Hill High School at Fayetteville, suggested "The Farmer's Part in the National Emergency." After sifting through more than 200 entries from agricultural and educational workers over the state, judges picked Mason's title.

The essay contest itself will begin January 15 and will extend through April 15. Mann, who is general manager of the Farmers Cooperative Exchange and the N. C. Cotton Growers Cooperative Association, sponsors of the annual contest, said the competition will be open to all rural boys and girls of high school age. Grand prize will be a one-year college scholarship and $100 in cash. Other prizes will be in cash, with state runners-up and county and district winners receiving in excess of $1,000.

More than 85,000 rural boys and girls have participated in this annual essay contest since it was started in 1920, and approximately 3,000 to 10,000 are expected to submit entries in the 1951 competition Mann declared.

A Johnson County girl, Laura Frances Pope of Rt. 1, Coats, was winner of the 1950 contest. Last year's subject was "My Part in the Farm Program of Tomorrow."

Day-old pullman or sandwich bread sliced thin, is firm enough for easy spreading yet not too dry. For efficient making, arrange bread in rows - 3 rows of 6 slices each make 9 sandwiches. Without picking up bread, butter each slice to the very edge; place a scoop of filling on alternate slices or rows; spread evenly. Cover with matching slice. Stack several sandwiches together and cut in half diagonally with sharp knife. Wrap separately. If made in advance, keep in refrigerator until lunch is packed.
