

CAPITAL REPORTER

Scott Summers

One irate citizen wrote to his senator... About the nicest thing he said was that if they were so bent on being sure that folks recognized them and their importance then they should legislate themselves some special badges to wear, identifying them as members of the General Assembly.

have had to organize in an attempt to get something done for them. This year the teacher-state employee organizations didn't do so good. They even had themselves sneered at by Rep. E. T. Bost of Cabarrus, chairman of the House Finance Committee.

There was the distinct impression that all of the senators were voting their convictions. Not one budged an inch because of the roll call. Many of them resented the record vote, however, because they know that it will be used to fight them and to attempt to label them as being against teachers and against raises for state employees.

This was not the way they felt. With a budget $43,000,000 more than originally estimated, the senator's attitude was that this General Assembly has done all it can that to raise the budget higher would be disastrous. They may well be wrong, but that was the way they saw it.

Ironically, even if by some wild happenstance the bill should get a favorable report there isn't enough time to get through the Legislature. The General Assembly has its adjournment set on Saturday. Since the Sawyer bill calls for a state-wide vote, there wouldn't be enough time left to get it through both houses on the six separate readings — and six separate days — it would take.

A Hymn Is Born BY CLINT BONNER

All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name

A baby girl is born to a Yankee carpenter Olive Holden put down his saw, bent out a few bars of a melody and picked up his hammer. The 21-year-old carpenter-musician had come to Charlestown from nearby Shirley, Massachusetts, to help rebuild the town after the British had burned it during the Revolution. Though he never had a lesson in music, Holden became famous for composing a welcoming song for George Washington when the general visited Boston in 1789.

ALL HAIL THE POWER All hail the power of Jesus' name! Let angels prostrate fall; Bring forth the royal diadem, And crown Him Lord of all.
