Industrial-Commercial Workers Are

Social security is not new to the industrial and commercial worker of the Nation. They are charter members of the Federal oldage and survivors insurance system They have had this protection since 1937; their families, and their survivors since 1939 They constitute a large part of more than four million people diready receiving monthly insurance benefit payments.

What, then does the New Social Security mean to the survivors of a woman worker, if he was dependent on her for at least one half his support. half his support.

In addition to monthly payments to certain of your dependents a single lump-sum death benefit is always payable after an insured worker's death
