When you lift your telephone think about what it represents. You only see the instrument itself, but think of the wire, the cable, the intricate switches, and all the other items it takes to let you call anywhere, anytime.

Everything which goes into providing you service has increased in price much more than your telephone rates. And now you can call more people and more people can call you.

Your telephone company has asked for, and needs, an increase in rates. This increase is needed to keep service good and to provide more of it.

You can't have good service without a financially sound Telephone Company.
