Wandering Through Warsaw

I am not sure how many towns there are in the United States named Warsaw but I know of at least four others—and none of them is in the least like Warsaw, N. C. I have not been able to find out exactly why the town was called that either—although rumor has it that the name came from the book "Thaddeus of Warsaw."

Certainly the town was there many decades before the late Richard Addisell wrote his lovely piece "Warsaw Concerto." Warsaw would be a hard place to describe to anyone who had not been there—it has beautiful homes on shady streets, magnificent old houses and very up-to-date modern ones. It's main street runs along the railroad—the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad. It's a natural and convenient shopping center for all near-by Duplin County. It is bisected by through highways going in every direction. And for those who come in to shop or to bring their vegetables to the Warsaw Produce Market—and for all those in the surrounding area who have homes to build.

The Godwin Building Block Company, for example, sells concrete blocks out of which you can build anything from outdoor fireplaces to houses and tobacco barns. At the Warsaw Hardware Company they not only sell hardware but they fix things for you, too—when I was there, they had just repaired a reel which the owner was going to use this week end for King Mackerel. They sell tobacco cutters, too, and so does the Farmer's Hardware and Merchandise Corporation.

Are you in the market for a car? A cool appraisal of the world situation would make it seem that if you need one you ought to get one soon, you can get a Pontiac from the Rivenbark Motor Company, or an Oldsmobile from the West Motor Company—they sell G.M.C. trucks, too. It might not be a bad idea to get a new radio or at least to get your old one repaired at Fowler's Radio Sales and Repair shop—they guarantee their work.

If you are shopping for clothing for the family, why not leave your car at the Esso Service Center or the Vet's Service Station to have a servicing job done while you are in Brooks modern store. They have everything for any member of the family, shoes and dresses and suits and materials of all kinds.

Should your shoes just need repairing, the City Shoe Shop does excellent work—and they do a fine polish job on your summer shoes. Cleo Hibbs is well known for her good work in keeping Duplin's gals glamorous at her beauty salon, and Mack's Beauty Shoppe is very popular, too.

If you are getting hungry while you are out at the Produce Market, Mack's Grill is only a block away—and there is the Coffee Shop—farther out of town where they serve a delicious steak. You can get a coke and a sandwich at Bill Sheffield's cool Warsaw Drug Store, or almost anything you might think a drug store would carry and many things you would not expect to find there.

If you haven't had your winter clothes cleaned and mothproofed, you should do it right away—at the Warsaw Dry Cleaners or at Smith Dry Cleaners. They both do good work.

There are several excellent grocery stores in Warsaw—the T and S Grocery and the J. J. West Market and you can get fresh fish at the Warsaw Fish Market. If you own deep-freeze, full, you should rent a locker from the Clifton Freezer Locker Company—and you know your foods will be properly frozen.

For entertainment, there is the Recreation Center—and Finn Lee's Duplin Theatre—he always has late run pictures.

R. E. Quinn has all kinds of furnitures—you can make an outdoor living room with some of his lawn pieces that you would enjoy all summer.

The Cavanaugh and Pitter Insurance Company and you will enjoy talking to Aubrey Cavanaugh anyway—he knows many things about Eastern North Carolina and its resources, and he is an ardent North Carolina fan. Mack Oil Company will furnish you oil for heating and curing your tobacco.

Warsaw is quite a place—with an atmosphere all its own. I have met some very nice people in Warsaw—and they have been genuinely kind and friendly—they have a knack of making you feel at home in their town, Warsaw, North Carolina, U.S.A.

—The roving reporter.

The adult screwworm fly, a serious livestock pest, does not survive winter temperatures in North Carolina, but infested animals can bring the pest in from the deep South where it lives the year round. The U. S. winter wheat crop is estimated at 986 million bushels—340 million more than were produced last year.

Smokey Says:

The first evidence of thrips on stages of their injury can be recognized on cotton is a 'silvering' or 'nicking' of the puckering of the underside of the leaves. Later affected leaves.

The small volume of pesticides being bought by farmers for the 1952 crop season is causing serious storage and other problems for pesticide manufacturers, according to the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Recent figures indicate that smaller than average stocks of feed grains were held on farms on April 1. They were about one-third less than the peak holdings of 1949 and about one-sixth less than in 1951.
