HOME OWNERS QUESTION BOX

Q—Can anything be done to keep a wood porch floor from rotting?

A—Outdoor wood floors usually rot because moisture gets into the wood. When building a new floor, paint the boards all over before they are laid. Don't wait until the floor is finished and then paint only the top.

Q—When putting a new roof on a house, must the old material be taken off or can the new shingles be put right on top of the old ones?

A—If asphalt shingles are to be used for the new roof, as is usually the case, the old roofing normally can be left in place. The roof deck and old material must provide a sound nailing base, and the deck must be strong enough to support both the new and the old layers of material. If these two conditions are met, application of asphalt shingles over old roofing is desirable. It is an economical method, eliminating the expense of removing the wornout roofing. Another advantage is that the overall thickness of the roof covering is increased.

Q—What can be done to preserve cane chair seats? Should they be painted?

A—A good treatment for cane or rush is to brush it with linseed oil. Some of the oil will be absorbed and the rest should be wiped off. This treatment will keep the material from soiling readily.

Q—What is the best way to fix a tear in a canvas awning?

A—The best way is to sew a patch in place. Patches also can be attached with the kind of rubber cement used for patching inner tubes of automobile tires.
