Sara Joiner's Column

Did you ever think about the fact that it only takes a little kindness to give a new sunrise to someone lost in darkness?

One of the strongest memories of my childhood is how a farmer friend of my granddaddy had a fine bird dog that killed chickens. At least he killed one while we were making a little visit to his home. I'll never forget how the angry farmer tied the bloody carcass of the dead chicken around the bird dog's neck and made him drag it around wherever he went. He said that it would cure him of killing chickens. (I wonder if it did.)

Society holds somewhat to the same idea. Once let a person do something that violates the 'code' and we are disposed to tie it around his neck and make him drag it along back of him the rest of his life.

A case has come to my attention recently of our dead chicken method of punishing our fellow man. It may be a competent method though I have my doubts; but it certainly is cruel, and crushes something inside the person punished that makes redemption and return to life's higher levels all the more difficult, if not impossible.

The case has to do with a lady, I use the word lady advisedly. (She is a lady.) A sort of angel with a crumpled wing. Back in her past is a little period when she was something less than her best. But who is there who does not have some scars on the wings of his soul? The majority of us are fortunate that we have healed our wounds and wings on each morning sting the old sweet strain — but the scars are there — and we should never forget them when we come to deal with those wings are crumpled and who have fallen down from their high places. Maybe, too, they paid dearly. Look up that poem with the line, At sunrise, every good soul is born again.

Buick's New 'Skylark' Sports Car

This sleek new sports convertible by Buick is built on a 1932 Roadmaster chassis with many innovations in styling, such as chrome plated wire racing wheels, down-swept doors in line with fender lines, and streamlined hood, hood ornament and grille. Labeled the "Skylark," it was designed and made to styled sweepstakes molding, keynoting simplicity of design. The interior, with lowered seats, is finished in brilliant Helsinki red leather in striking contrast to the Olympic white exterior. The "Skylark" is powered by Buick's famed 170 horsepower Fireball eight overhead valve engine.

In modern life someone has said the truth: the woman is the one who lies only about her age, weight and her husband's salary.

—Bud Nelson.

More fertilizer was used on American farms, gardens, and lawns in 1944 than in any previous year on record, according to a recent survey by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Consumption in 1944 and 57 of 20,986,740 tons exceeded that of the preceding year by 14 per cent and was almost three times as great as annual consumption before World War II. Average for 1935-39 was about 7 1/2 million tons.

DEFERENCE TO AGE

Respecting the age of Rome's famous pine trees and complaints of irate Romans, the builder of this apartment house got around the tree problem by going around the tree. He left the tree untouched by circling it with the roof of the main entrance.

For More and Better Telephone Service

Here's what we have done since 1945 to meet the growing needs of the area we serve—

- Added 52,903 New Telephones, A Gain Of 17 Per Cent
- Installed 11,080 New Rural Telephones, A 221 Per Cent Increase
- Boosted Our Investment By $24,327,474, or 25 Per Cent

Like most things, telephone service costs more these days. The fact that we had to boost our investment 25% to increase the telephone service 197% shows, in part, why our service costs more. But your telephone bills aren't more today because you can call most people, get better and better service, than ever before.
