Small Eggs To Begin Appearing On Market

A small egg doesn't necessarily mean an undesirable egg, yet many consumers have shown resistance to buying the small pullet eggs, which will soon be coming to market.

However, R. S. Dearstyne, head of the State College Poultry Department, points out, freshly laid, carefully handled pullet eggs possess high nutritive quality, compared to larger eggs.

Dearstyne says that pullet eggs should be priced down on a comparable basis to large eggs, if the small eggs are to move. The producer and the merchant must handle the problem of pricing the small eggs in such a way that consumer resistance is overcome.

For the welfare of the industry, the many pullet eggs that will appear on the market during late summer and early autumn must be sold.

Market eggs now available can be grouped into three classes:

1. Freshly laid large eggs coming from hens about to go out of production. Good eggs are secured from such birds, but because of duration of lay, the shell texture is declining in strength and some of these eggs break easily.

2. Eggs coming out of storage. These are usually of high quality when stored, but the quality falls off relative to the length of storage and method of treatment.

3. Pullet eggs. When pullets come into production, egg size is usually quite small. It takes about three months for a chicken to build its eggs to maximum size. Heredity, diet and management are factors affecting the size.

Grady 4-H Group Going To Manteo For Encampment

The following from the B. F. Grady district will leave Monday for Manteo to attend the 4-H Club Camp to be held there August 4th-9th. Charles Smith, Scarlett Hill, Sue Smith, Phil Goodson, and Mary Ann Southerland. The group will meet at Summerlin's X Roads and will take a bus from there.

Bill Herring and Gerald Simmons, Grady School are in Raleigh attending a meeting of the FFA. Mr. N. A. Morrison, Jr., agriculture teacher accompanied them.

Donne Wells of Albemarle and Bobby Miller from Beaufort will be the scout staff at Camp Tuscarora this summer, left Goldsboro Monday morning with other members of the staff, for a few days vacation at Atlantic Beach.

Moore County farmers are becoming interested in making better quality hay and saving all the hay that they produce, says Edwin S. Coates, agricultural engineering specialist for the State College Extension Service.

As an example, says Coates, J. D. Parker of Eagle Springs plans to drop chopped hay in an old storage building on his farm. With about 125 head of beef cattle used for breeding purposes, Parker has found that he needs a more practical and efficient system for saving his hay.

With a hay-drying system, most of the chance element will be taken out of Parker's hay-making process. He estimates that the improvement in quality and increase in quantity will offset the initial cost of equipment during a two-year period.

Extra Precautions Are Prescribed For Rural People During Swimming Season

The swimming season is now at its height and rural people should take extra precautions to insure safety in swimming and other water sports, warns Lacy Weeks, county farm agent for State College Extension Service.

During 1951 approximately 6,500 persons drowned, and about 3,200 were nonswimming fatalities, occurring principally of drowning, according to National Safety Council records.

Some recommended precautions to reduce the needless loss of life from water sports are:

1. Make a thorough investigation regarding the safety of swimming facilities.

2. Don't swim alone - never go into the water when tired, overheated or immediately after eating.

3. Don't overload a boat. There may be seats for more people than the boat can safely carry.

4. Always step into the center of a boat - never jump; never stand up in a boat; never permit anyone to fall overboard.

5. Old tubs, boilers, jars, or other containers should not be left around the farmstead. It takes as little as two inches of water to drown an infant.

6. Protect stock watering tanks. If possible, fence them off or cover them.

7. Never swim in polluted water.

8. Avoid exerting beyond your strength and never dive into strange water where the depths and condition of the bottom are unknown.

Canning Hints

All food should be sound, and of first quality. If you wouldn't serve it tonight for dinner, it is not fit to can. You can take out of a can next winter only what you put into it now.

Follow directions to the letter and insist upon cleanliness. Don't experiment and do not try to substitute one ingredient for another. Rely on time-tested and proved recipes.

A pressure cooker is recommended for low-acid vegetables. For successful canning, proper heating and correct sealing are absolutely essential. Temperature must be high enough and held there long enough to kill the bacteria that cause spoilage.

Can only garden-fresh foods. Fruits and vegetables should be canned. If possible, immediately after they are gathered. This is especially necessary for vegetables.

90 Farm Youths To Attend Sixth Forestry Camp

Indications point to a full attendance of 90 farm youths from all parts of North Carolina at the sixth annual Forestry Camp for Farm Boys to be held during the week of August 3 at the State-owned Singletary Lake camp in Bladen County, according to State forestry officials.

The camp is held annually by the forestry division of the State Department of Conservation and Development, with the cooperation of the division of agricultural education of the State Department of Public Instruction, the forestry extension division of N. C. State College, and sponsored by a number of large wood using concerns, is growing in popularity every year, according to State Forester Fred H. Claridge.

While at the forestry camp, the youths who were picked because of the outstanding ability they have shown in promoting forestry conservation measures at school and on the farm, will not only enjoy beautiful Singletary Lake in swimming and fishing, but will also receive instruction in forestry education from a group of competent instructors.

George R. Ross, director of the Department of Conservation and Development is high in his praise of the camp.

E. H. Garrison, county agent, and W. G. Caldwell, assistant agent, are very much interested in Parker's installation. They feel it will be the beginning of a new farming procedure in that area.

I like to take up these items at a time when they will suit the needs of a particular crop or group of crops. However, sometimes questions arise that must be answered out of season.

During the last two weeks at least three gardeners have asked me, When is the best time to move peonies? That time would be October and November in Eastern North Carolina and September and October for the western or mountain section of the State. But don't move them unless there is some good reason to do so. Peonies do not like to be moved. If you have a large clump that is doing very well and producing good blooms don't disturb it. Any loss of roots will have a harmful effect.

It is not necessary to divide and move peonies every two or three years as we do with lilies. If a plant is not blooming satisfactorily then it may be advisable to move it to a better location, or perhaps it has been planted too deep and should be taken up and replanted. In such cases, cut off as few roots as possible. Peonies should be planted shallow — the buds should not be more than one to two inches below the surface of the soil.

Have you seen the recent newspaper ads of the "Miracle Plant" which will bloom for you without soil or water? The claims are true. The plant is the Colchicum which resembles a large crocus and will send out blooms without leaves during August or early September no matter if you put it in soil, water, or on the kitchen shelf. You can buy these bulbs at any of the large seed stores. Plant them in the yard about four inches deep. Leaves are produced in the spring which die down in summer and flowers come out during August. Or you may plant them in a bowl in the house very much like paper white narcissus bulbs.

Net income of farm operators in 1951 was about two billion dollars less than in 1947. However, the total was still nine times as much as the dollar income of farm operators in 1932.
