Good Management Pays Cash Dividends

Low production and failure to get the most out of every pound of feed are two of the biggest causes of unsatisfactory profits from livestock and poultry production.

High producing cows make milk the cheapest. It costs but little more to feed a hen that produces 200 eggs per year than one that lays 150 eggs yet there is a great difference in net income. Cull low producers and give more attention and feed to the good ones.

Save all the pigs, calves, and lambs you can. An extra pig per litter or two lambs per ewe instead of one, cuts the cost per pig or lamb.

Get everything possible from the feed used. Younger animals and birds make more pounds of gain on the same quality of feed than older ones.

Production is lowered when birds and animals are over crowded, ventilation is poor or feeding and watering is inadequate. When poultry houses, farrowing pens and dairy barns are not always clean and sanitary, diseases and parasites move to cut production, feed efficiency, and profits.

Feed won't deliver maximum results when poor feeding methods are used. A good feeder can show almost unbelievably greater profits from feeding a ton of feed than another feeder who feeds a like ton of feed, but fails to manage his operations as well.

With plenty of feed on hand and a strong demand for meat, milk and eggs in prospect, it looks like a good time to keep labor, housing and equipment working to capacity. For maximum profits, use a good feeding program, keep production high, and mortalities low.

National Home Demonstration Council To Meet In Raleigh Saturday Oct. 28th

On Saturday, October 25, thousands of rural homemakers from every corner of the United States will begin arriving in Raleigh to attend the 16th Annual Meeting of the National Home Demonstration Council.

Verna Stanton, Assistant State Home Agent at State College, announced that 38 states, Puerto Rico, Canada and Hawaii are all sending delegations to the capital city.

National President Jennie Williams, homemaker and owner operator of a Wyoming Ranch, stated that every woman who attends the national meeting in Raleigh should go home with a definite picture of what other states are doing as well as a heightened appreciation of what her own state has gained.

N. C. State Home Agent Ruth Current pointed out that the highlights of the meeting will be the reception at the governor's mansion, the North Carolina Night Program in William Neal Reynolds Coliseum, and the ten panel discussions on topics including the national reading program, family relations, citizenship, and the rural music program.

Throughout the week the national music program will be emphasized. It is educating the rural women of America through music. Participating will be two state home demonstration choruses, South Dakota and North Carolina's own group. In addition, four Tar-Heel County choruses are scheduled to appear.

Singing as soloist with the North Carolina Chorus at the North Carolina Night Program will be Norman Cordon, Director of Music at the University of North Carolina and former Metropolitan opera star. Directing the chorus will be Mrs. Eugene Umstead of Durham. Accompanist is Mrs. George Lindsay, also of Durham.

Speaking straight from the shoulder is okay—but be sure it originates a little higher up. Stand by your local newspapers—they are the best friends any organized community can have.

HERE IS YOUR PROOF!

Mr. Gordan Thigpen of Beulaville says—'My sow was fed PURINA Sow and Pig Chow and grain mixed according to the PURINA formula. My Sow farrowed 12 pigs and at 10 weeks of age they averaged weight 45 pounds each. I recommend to other hog men to feed the PURINA PROGRAM for LOTS OF PIGS—LARGE PIGS AND LOTS OF MILK FROM THE SOWS.'
