PASTOR'S COLUMN
DEATH
We prepare ourselves for many things during our existence here on earth; yet, many people fail to prepare themselves for the most important thing in life. We prepare ourselves for life from the teachings of our fathers and mothers and other loved ones in the home. We receive helpful guidance from our teachers in our schools, church schools, from ministers and other people we find in our surrounding environment.
We should be concerned about what will happen to us at death. We read in our papers daily where men and women, girls and boys have left this world.
I believe that we should not only prepare ourselves but that we should prepare our loved ones that they will have a better understanding as well.
As each one of us came into the world so each one of us will depart from this world. We may come to have a better understanding of death and prepare ourselves for it by developing our capacity for God and for things spiritual.
