Rural Progress Campaign Studies Role Of Negro Ministers In Meet Here

Duplin's Rural Progress Campaign gained momentum last night when more than a hundred ministers, church laymen, farmers and organization heads met at the Negro High School in Kenansville. The program was keynoteed by Rev. Delaney, who is in charge of training Negro ministers at Shaw University. Rev. Delaney gave a lecture demonstration on the preparing Negro ministers in the great challenge ahead. A film strip was shown, depicting the strides made by Negro ministers in preparing themselves for the task of leadership. The film-strip, "A Look At The Negro Minister" showed the modern day competent minister as one who is responsive to the needs of the community, as being well prepared, as being concerned with agriculture and educational aspects of community life. Rev. Delaney pointed out as did Rev. Lauren Sharpe of Kenansville at an earlier meeting, that the beauty of our church, our homes and our property grows out of the hearts of men, and is representative of the love we have for them.

Climaxing the program was a stimulating brief message from Bishop A. Baker of New York. This marked a week-end of activities designed to meet the needs of Duplin County. The annual meeting of the Rose Hill Burial Association denoting progress in Negro Business in the county was held Sunday. The County 4-H Vesper service was also held Sunday with gratifying success and being followed with the inspirational meeting of ministers and church laymen.

The Rural Progress Campaign committee is composed of leaders in the field of agriculture, religion, schools, civic groups and business designed to bring about better team work in developing our natural and human resources in Duplin County. Dr. Clarence Poe, editor of the Progressive Farmer has added a $500.00 incentive to the county, making the most total progress during the year. Last year, Duplin rated among the top five counties in the state in total progress made in community development. Other guests present were Mrs. McLean Harrison at Shaw University and R. L. Wynn, Dairy Specialist for the North Carolina Extension Service.

"Harbor Light" Theme Chinquapin School Banquet

"Harbor Lights" was the theme carried out on Friday night, when the Chinquapin Junior-Senior banquet was held at the Legion Home in Wallace.

The dining hall was attractively decorated with pines at the background. The lighthouse on the hill was built on the stage with blue colored crepe paper with stars hung above the lighthouse. White ruffled crepe paper was attached on the side for waves. Rainbow colored crepe paper was stretched to each side and brought to the ceiling in the center. Light blue and silver stars were scattered above the ceiling.

The tables had pastel lighted candles with low arrangements of white flowers centered. Individual favors were cups of mints and nuts. The program was as follows: Invocation, Mr. W. P. Hubbard. School song, unison. Land Aho! Lenwood Simpson. Sailing, all.

Lights Along the Shore, E v a Ladies. My Bonnie Lies Over the Ocean. Lighthouse On The Hill, Nancy Norris. Advice From An Old Salt, Allen Nethercutt. Harbor Lights, chorus. Speeches: Rev. Vesper Murrell. Anchors Aweigh, all. Treasure Chest (Pirate Dail),

Grace Dail. Games and dancing led by Mrs. R. L. Pruitt at the close of the program. Toastmaster, Lenwood Simpson. The menu consisted of canned potatoes, baked ham, butter beans, strawberry shortcake, whipped cream, tea, tomato juice.

Thompson Reminds Bond Holders Of Treasury Offer

Mr. E. C. Thompson of Warsaw, volunteer chairman of the Duplin County U. S. Savings Bonds Committee today reminded all holders of F & G Treasury bonds which will mature between May 1 and December 1933 of the Treasury offer which makes it possible for them to exchange their bonds for the new Treasury 3 1-4 percent fully marketable bonds if they desire. The offer announced by Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey April 13, does not apply to Series E Savings Bonds which mature during the same period. Holders of maturing E Bonds are still privileged to hold the same Bonds for an additional ten years with interest. Holders of maturing F and G Bonds must make application to exchange their bonds for the new 3 1-3 percent issue before May 1. Arrangements to make the exchange should be made at Federal Reserve Banks and Branches. Local banks will be glad to advise holders on making the exchange, Mr. Thompson added.

Exchanges of Series F and G bonds will be made par for par and will be allotted in full. Since holders of Series F and G bonds will receive interest on the new bonds at the rate of 3 1-3 percent from May 1, 1933, interest adjustments will be made as follows. In the case of Series F bonds the subscriber will be charged an amount equivalent to interest from May 1 to date of maturity of the F bond at the rate of 2 3/8 percent per annum. In the case of Series G bonds, the owner will receive an interest payment at the rate of 2 3/8 percent per annum borne by the G bond, from the last interest payment date to May 1, 1933.

The lowest denomination of the new bonds will be $500. Mr. Thompson pointed out. Holders of smaller denomination Series F and G bonds may exchange them for the next higher multiple of $500 upon payment of any cash difference. Eligible F and G bond holders who do not wish to make the exchange will have the opportunity of reinvesting the proceeds of their bonds as they mature in Savings Bonds currently on sale, or to receive cash payment.

The Treasury has called the special attention of all F and G bond holders including those corporations and organizations which require directors' or finance committee action, to the limited time available for making application for exchange. The offer expires April 30. A big heart does not make for a human good than a brilliant mind.
