

A bell rings... and summer's fun is over.

It's back to school for the nation's youngsters. Although many of them will be reflecting this boy's glumness, they can take comfort in the fact that today's school buildings are a far cry from the one-room schoolhouse of old, and a far more pleasant place in which to spend learning hours.

6th Annual Rural Health Conference At State College Wednesday, Oct. 21st

Raleigh, Aug. 1.—The 6th Annual Rural Health Conference sponsored by the Medical Society of North Carolina, has been set for Wednesday, October 21, 1933, at the North Carolina State College. The day's conference will include the following: The North Carolina State Health Council, the North Carolina Grange, the North Carolina Farm Bureau Federation, the Health Committee of the N. C. Congress of Parents and Teachers, and the Federation of Home Demonstration Clubs along with other agricultural and health organizations. Commissioner of Agriculture L. Y. Ballentine will preside over the morning session. The one-day session on the theme "Dividends of Health" will include several prominent out of state agricultural and health leaders. Keynote speaker will be Mrs. Charles W. Sewell, of Ottobine, Indiana, former Administrative Director of the American Farm Bureau Associated Women, and co-founder of the rural health movement. Another feature of the program will be a Dutch Family Style Picnic and a panel discussion during the afternoon on everyday health problems. The topics for discussion by the panel will be determined by return post cards from the rural people who plan to attend the conference. A Progress Parade—reports from selected communities on how they determined and solved their health problems—will be featured again this year, having proved to be one of the conference's most popular features in past years. This year the Progress Parade will include one section accounting accomplishments by the youth of North Carolina in the field of health. Summation of the day's program will be made by R. C. Francis of Waynesville, N. C. Also on the program will be I. G. Greer, Executive Director, North Carolina Business Foundation, who will discuss "Health Dividends for Youth". Through-out the day special music will be provided for the entertainment of conference participants. As in previous years the conference will be open to farmers, housewives, agricultural—health—welfare organization workers and members, doctors, and others interested in rural health. Additional information concerning the conference will be available soon from health departments, medical societies, and farm and home agents.

HANDY FARMER—Simon Hagemann, a Lebanon, Ill., farmer, greases the power-driven side-delivery rake he made before taking it into the field. Hagemann, who makes all his own farm machinery, says that he began building the power-driven device which the rake contains before farm supply companies thought of the idea.

Wardrobe Fixture

By VERA WINSTON CASHMERE-type knit is used for a classic type spectator sports dress, the type that is always found in the well-rounded wardrobe. The dress closes with disc-type composition buttons to the waist. The collar, somewhat larger than the usual convertible collar, gives new interest to the design, and, for an extra touch, is padded. Batwing sleeves extend to just below the elbow. There are pockets in the gorges of the easy skirt.

STRICTLY FRESH

LIQUOR is something for which many drivers don't mind paying twice—once in cash and once in crash. Scientists predict that the cigarette of the future will come with built-in matches. From longer butts to "lighter" ones, huh? Two heads are better than one, if they're both filled. The Charleroi, Pa., Chamber of Commerce says that it had women in mind when it built extra-large stalls in the new municipal parking lot. So who hasn't?

The Dickson Charity Fund has Assets of $6,333.79, consisting of deposits in bank of $1,278.79; Notes Receivable, $4,850; and Postal Savings Certificates of Deposit of $225. Scope of Audit All recorded receipts were checked in detail, and were found properly credited. All disbursements were made by vouchers properly drawn and signed, which were checked against the records and found in order. Bank accounts were reconciled and found in agreement with the records of the County Treasurer.

To be successful one must learn how to listen even though the conversation isn't the least bit interesting. When his boss telephoned to inquire about his health, a bookkeeper in Memphis, Tenn., thought he had been discovered and blurted out that he had been embezzling funds for the past two years.
