Calypto-Faison Moves Toward Consolidation

By Paul Barwick
In Goldsboro News-Argus
A move is under way to consolidate Calypso and Faison High Schools and construct a new school plant between the two towns.

The proposal was brought to the forefront when citizens of the two communities appeared before the Duplin County School Board at a special meeting at Calypso and asked for the merger.

School officials at both schools say their facilities have become inadequate. Under-sized classrooms at the schools, they say, are filled to capacity.

At Faison, Principal R. A. Gray says: "We absolutely cannot handle any more students."

In the discussions, it has been learned that there also exists a teacher shortage. Faison has only three teachers in the high school, including the principal, and Calypso has five, including the principal.

Presently, Faison school with 14 small classrooms seems to be the most crowded. There is an enrollment of 342, with 70 students enrolled in the high school. Because of teacher allotments being made on number of pupils and attendance, the result is Faison has an acute teacher shortage.

Faison Principal Gray says the "absolute minimum curriculum is being offered students here." This causes some students to leave the area and go to schools which offer a more varied curriculum.

English, French, social studies, mathematics, home economics and typing are offered at Faison. Science and social study courses are alternated each year in order that students remaining at Faison can meet state requirements for their high school diploma. Algebra II is not offered. Only typing is given in the commercial subjects and no teacher is with the class while typing is being taught.

It is offered six periods each day. Lessons and class work are posted on bulletin board. There is no class room for typing and it has to be taught in the hall on first floor near elementary classrooms.

Home economics is offered in the basement of the gymnasium where the lunchroom is also located. Principal Gray stated, "We are definitely losing students because of inadequate facilities, teachers and space."

Should the high schools be consolidated the present structures would serve as elementary school buildings (grades one through eight). Gray says this year's first grade class has 46 students and there is only one teacher. "Our enrollment will probably increase with better facilities and more space."

Several hundred new cars and truck dealers have already made reservations to attend the Convention Cruise of the North Carolina Automobile Dealers Association which will be held on board ship enroute to Bermuda. This information was released today by T. L. Black, Pinehurst, president of NCAD.
