

WAR FOR SEGREGATION!

and in effect blueprint a pattern for social custom and social intercourse between peoples.

Last Monday the Supreme Court set aside the practice of segregation in the South. I say South because it was aimed directly at the South. The "nine old men" say in effect there is no such thing as races anymore in the South! They say that the habits and customs you people have built up over the past three hundred and more years are now no longer in effect. The gains the Negroes have made in the South and particularly in Duplin County and North Carolina have flown out the window. You must go back at least fifty years or more and start all over again. All the thinking and planning on the part of the White people and Negroes to improve the lot of both have been wasted. You must now do as we say, not as your conscience, reason and custom directs you.

Do "nine old men" in Washington City have such a power over people? If so then we might as well scrap our constitution and call the whole thing off. They say it is a good world policy for us; they say it is the Christian thing to do. Would Christ have acted in such a manner? When he came to earth to save all people he lived among and associated with all-races and classes. He did not question the social customs and functions of the day as such. He said "Render unto Caesar that which is Caesar's". He delighted in seeing a people improve their lot and go forward.

Here in Duplin County, since the Civil War, we have had no trouble between the Whites and Negroes. I'll challenge anyone to show me a finer, prouder and more determined race of people than the Negroes in Duplin County. They are proud of their race and want to go forward under their own power. They are not opposed to segregation in our schools and in our social customs. They don't want to see the great gains they have made in the education of their race in our county thrown to the winds. They want to continue to improve their education and show to the world that the Negroes of Duplin County are proud of their race and of their progress.

Our White people demand segregation in schools and I don't believe either race in Duplin is going to stand for such nonsense.

Duplin, White and Colored, let's take up the banner of self-rights and fight this demon from Washington with everything we have. Let's make our plans to open our schools next fall as usual and go along just as we have been doing. Let's not let some outsiders tell us what to do. I believe if we proceed in this manner, with no disturbances, with reason and toleration for our fellowman and our government but, with a firm determination to do the right as we see it, we will win out.

No we do not want our races mixed in our schools and let's not allow it. Our money is paying the bill and we want to run our schools as we see fit. We want our Negroes in Duplin to continue to have a voice in their schools. We want them to continue to go forward in every phase of life under their own banner and judgment.

Duplin let's fight this thing. If you elect me to the State Senate in the Primary on May 29th, you may rest assured I will go to Raleigh and fight with all I have to kill this monster from Washington City who tells us we must live, breathe and act just as it dictates.

County Convention

We glory in the record of our party, and its principles, and we look with scorn upon the McCarthy scene now going on in Washington. However, this squabble is making more Democrats, and we will be the recipients of their errors.

Death of Senator Hoey Puts Umstead In Unique Position

William E. Umstead last week became the second governor in modern American history to gain the opportunity of appointing two United States Senators during his term of office.

Last July the Governor turned to Alton A. Lennon of Wilmington as Willis Smith died in his post of junior U. S. Senator from North Carolina. Wednesday of last week golden-voiced Clyde Reark Hoey at his desk of a stroke to become the fourth North Carolina Senator to succumb in office in seven and a half years. With his passing, the matter of a successor was laid once again to the choice of Governor Umstead.

Only once before in modern United States political history has the situation been duplicated. In 1938 Governor David S. Reid of Florida was forced by deaths to fill two Senate vacancies within a matter of weeks.

Had Senator Hoey died before the filing deadline of the May 29 Democratic primaries, the door would have been thrown open to candidates seeking their party's nomination. But since his death came after that deadline, North Carolina states confer upon Governor Umstead the right of appointing a successor to serve until the general elections of next November.

The statutes also confer upon the State Democratic Executive Committee the right to nominate the party's candidate for the Senate in those general elections. Presumably, but not necessarily, the committee will bestow its blessings upon the man whom the Governor appoints and who will already be serving.

There was no indication yesterday as to when the Governor would make the appointment. Theoretically, he could wait and let the Democratic Executive Committee meet and nominate a candidate for the November elections, then send that man to Washington as his appointee. However, it is considered likely that the Governor will make the
