Facts As I See Them

If people everywhere could live so they could be an inspiration instead of a deprecation to their fellowmen, wouldn't we all benefit from it? I feel that parents make their biggest mistakes by making their children feel depreciated instead of appreciated.

But what do you think happens when a man can take two punishments at once, like Lavern Nelson of Marion, Ind. He recently was sentenced to two to five years for burglary, and then let the Judge R. T. Craine, marry him to Fatsie McNeal. That's a mix up, but love always finds a way. That is the difference between the two.

Have you ever felt like shooting yourself in the stomach to take your mind off a severe toothache? It would be like burning down your home because you disliked your neighbors, wouldn't it?

Have you ever met or known people who if you saw a hornet you would be glad to kill the person to keep the insect from getting stung? Never had thought about it in that way, had you? We should all consider the animals along with the insects, because God made them all.

I guess most men know that just because some of them can hold down two jobs that it does not entitle them to two wives. Some have to learn even that. Reminds me of the fact that just because you have been given a blood transfusion and received blood of a thief—it does not mean that you can go out and rob and steal.

These sweet young teen-agers who think they are grown-ups! But we older ones know that is the happiest time of life, or should be; is when children learning of life—and before we fall into the pitfalls of much of it—and can't find a way out of it.

A World Unknown To A Civilian

Not long ago on a Korean battle front, a reporter looking at a serious minded soldier, asked him what he'd rather have if he could be granted what he wanted most. Much to the reporter's surprise, the soldier answered, slowly, "Tomorrow"—"Just a Tomorrow." A thing most of us take for granted was all one soldier wanted. And that could very well give the answers to all our loved ones who are in uniforms anywhere over the globe. This

"A tomorrow," should make most of us who get lots of what we want and don't even appreciate it, get down on our knees, with a prayer to God for our neglect to our service men and what they stand for.

It is a fact that unless some people actually have men and boys in the services that they barely give them a second thought. I've actually heard the remark "Boys, that is only jealousy, for your parents are proud of you in uniform as well as out of uniform, and don't you forget it. One strays occasionally but that happens in any walk of life. The whole country is proud of all of you. May you see many tomorrows."

Folks, don't let things rile you until you see red, because you most likely will wind up black and blue, besides being red all over. It's like that all through life. It's not the mountains we all trip over, it's usually the mole hills.

Some jesters are like some sweethearts—they often have sour saucers.

If thinking is the essence of wisdom, it surely must mean that it's the little things in life that count most, like little compliments to a friend or a loved one who you know to be lonely and who of us don't know of a lonely person. I can't say I'm ever lonesome but I am lonely at times. I have my time so filled with thoughts that I seldom realize it. I'm just thankful that I can and will find so much to do that

I do not realize loveliness although I might be better off to realize it and do something about it. (Like what?)

New Taylor Wheat Popular In Caswell

One of the first growers' reports on the new Taylor variety wheat comes from Negro County Agent E. B. Carroway, Caswell County. The report is "very encouraging," said Carroway.

The agent says all the information he can gather from growers indicates the new wheat has made a hit with farmers. "It has good rust resistance, good straw strength, and yields are as good or better than the previous best varieties (Atlas, Anderson, etc.)."

Carroway adds that Taylor is an "attractive wheat with more rye appeal than other varieties. We believe Taylor has improved yields in 1934 for the group of farmers planting this variety. The flour mills in this area are praising the new variety very highly for its excellent quality flour. In general, the growers are expected to quickly accept the variety for its yield and eye appeal."

Recent reports from United States soybean producers indicate they expect to harvest 288,000 acres of the crop this year.
