Non-Farm Employment In State Has Dropped

It has been reported by the North Carolina Department of Labor that employment dropped 9,000 in the State during the month of May.

The job declines occurred in textiles, chemicals, furniture, and wholesale and retail trade industries.

The State's total non-farm employment figure stood at 975,800 in mid-May, compared with 984,600 in mid-April. The total was down 27,000 or 2.7 per cent below the level of May, 1953, when 1,002,600 people were employed in nonagricultural jobs in the State.

A majority of both the manufacturing and nonmanufacturing industries reported a lower employment level. In the State's giant textile industry, employment was down 6.1 per cent from the total of May 1953. Yarn and thread were down 10.6 per cent; broadweave fabrics, 5.4 per cent; Knitting mills, 3.5 per cent.

Employment in both the lumber and furniture industries was eight per cent below the level of May last year. Jobs in the contract construction industry were down 10.9 per cent.
