HOMEMAKING NEWS

Kitchen Lighting Is Important
Consider sight as well as reach in arranging your kitchen for convenience and safety. Much has been said over the years about having supplies and utensils within easy reach. But easy sight is important too, especially today when there are more older women, more employed women who do their kitchen work in the evening, as well as younger wives with more young children to care for who must work in a hurry.

Kitchen lighting should be arranged so the clear, direct light falls on sink, range, and work counters with shadows or eye tiring glare. Light also should shine in cupboards. Shelves should be just deep enough to hold one tier of packaged supplies, cups or glasses, for easy sight as well as easy reach. Women who wear glasses, especially bifocals, may need to place frequently used items to suit their special "visibility". Locate packaged goods, cans or bottles where labels are easy to see. The holder for the cookbook needs to be placed to make reading easy. Light-colored wall and ceilings also help visibility. Generally a semi-gloss finish is better for preventing glare than a high gloss.

A man who refuses to try to help himself finds little sympathy when he seeks outside assistance.

Don't trust in the ponies and you'll never have occasion to join a "Don't Worry Club."
