HERE'S YOUR TIMEKEEPER

for the world's lowest paid work-gang!

Night and day, this Timekeeper keeps accurate record of the work-hours your electric service performs for you. It's always on the job because electricity never sleeps—never asks for a day off—knows no quitting time. Yet today the wages for its labor are less per unit used than they were 15 years ago. Truly, electricity does more for less than any other work-gang in the world.

While you sleep, it works safely and silently to power the furnace, air-conditioner, water heater and refrigerator. At the flick of your finger, it dissipates darkness with a blaze of light.

During the day it works even harder to serve your comfort and convenience. Whether it's to cook or clean—to wash or dry—to iron, polish, whip or mix—your electric servants are on instant call. Then to relax or entertain you, it brings you the happy hours of television, radio or the family fun of home movies.

So you see electricity is, in a way, your personal "work-gang" for your home, farm or business. It works for you around the clock, year-in and year-out for pennies per day. And you can be sure that precision meters will measure accurately the work-hours devoted to serving you.
