For some time, certain factors in Washington have been giving attention to problem of adequate supplies of reasonably priced newspaper to sustain nation's independent press.

For years American press has been dependent upon foreign newsprint, even though nation has huge supplies of newsprint.

Through monopolistic practices, these foreign newsprint producers, chiefly Canadian, have consistently raised newspaper prices until life of many independent newspapers is endangered.

The smaller, independent weekly and daily newspapers, the last vestiges of the free press, are the chief concern as many of the big publishing combines have their own newsprint operations.

Unfortunately, it requires a huge investment to start a newsprint plant. For strange unexplained reasons, U. S. paper producers do not seem anxious to develop an adequate domestic newsprint supply.

So announcement by Wendell Barnes, administrator of the Small Business Administration, released by Senate Small Business Committee, is of considerable interest.

Barnes reports Small Business Administration is considering plans whereby groups of independent publishers could get financing to organize cooperative newsprint mills.

Of course, there will be opposition to this suggestion on grounds government should not encourage cooperative ventures to compete with private enterprise.

Yes, question will be how to this. Should government refrain from encouraging American owned cooperatives when they will compete with foreign monopolies?

Issue seems clearcut as that.

At same time, if such a plan is adopted, certain caution will have to be exercised to make sure it does not open door for government encroachment upon free press.

This will be important consideration. As is well known, both radio and television stations in this nation operate under a government permit system. Broadcast licenses can be suspended almost at will.

Radio and television program content is still relatively free from government dictation, but perhaps only because nation's independent press would be first to take up cudgels if broadcast licenses can be suspended almost at will.

It is significant, along this line, that in past few years, in so-called "Public service" time which stations must run to hold licenses, broadcast material has been heavily loaded with propaganda films extolling virtues of world wide give-away programs. This could be an indication of the shape of things to come if nation's free press were permitted to succumb to greed of foreign newsprint monopolies.

It is to be expected that whether or not Barnes' plan is adopted, this session Congress will find renewed attention being given to the future of the free press in the nation.

ing ceremonies throughout the nation, General Mark W. Clark, National Chairman of the 1954 Heart Fund Drive, said the campaign will reach its climax on Heart Sunday, February 28, when more than 500,000 volunteer workers in over 5000 communities will conduct house-to-house collections in behalf of the Heart Fund.

In North Carolina, William D. Carmichael, Jr., of Chapel Hill, chairman of the State Campaign Committee, stated that as of mid-January, over 100 communities in this state were organized to join in the Heart Fund Drive, with more campaign committees being formed daily. "We expect Heart Sunday to find thousands of Tarheels marching through the streets of their towns, ringing their neighbor's account for over half of all deaths this state, as elsewhere in the nation, people are realizing that diseases of the heart and blood vessels account for over half of all deaths and they have come to believe that the greatest hope for combating this killer lies in obtaining more knowledge about how to fight it."

In addition to supporting national and state heart research projects, Mr. Carmichael added, money raised in the drive is spent on services to local communities in keeping physicians abreast of the latest treatment, and in educating the public on what is known about prevention and care. "We need to know a lot more, however," said Mr. Carmichael. "That is why we suggest that people regard their giving to the Heart Fund as an investment in their own future, as well as in the health of America."

President Eisenhower Calls American People Asked To Help Advance Study Of Heart Disease In February

President Dwight D. Eisenhower has called upon the American people to support the efforts of "physicians, medical scientists and laymen throughout the country who have joined hands in a determined effort to achieve ultimate victory over the diseases of the heart."

The President's statement was presented through Dr. Paul Dudley White, eminent heart specialist, in Chicago at a dinner opening the 1954 Heart Fund campaign, which will be conducted throughout February by the American Heart Association and its affiliates, including the North Carolina Heart Association.

The text of the message, addressed to the American Heart Association, follows:

"In observance of American Heart Month, I extend cordial greetings to physicians, medical scientists and laymen throughout the country who have joined hands in a determined effort to achieve ultimate victory over the diseases of the heart."

"Because these diseases constitute the foremost national health doorbells, and accepting donations
