The Pony League consist of teams from Rose Hill, Wallace, Clinton and Warsaw and up until press time this week the Ponies of Parkerson's has won one and lost one. Monday of this week Warsaw played in Clinton and we do not have the result since the news goes to press first of the week. I would like for you to meet the boys which are graduates of Little League and are now determined to hang on until they reach the Seaboard Prep League age. These boys are a little too old to play in the Little League and too young for the High School team. In a few years we will be getting fine results in our High School. The following boys are members of the Pony League.

Hubert Merritt, Allen Wahab, David Benton, Bill Straughan, Mac McNeil, Jackie Benton, James Cavanaugh, Jimmy Boyette, Glenn Braswell, Colon Quinn, Charles Lockamy.

I wonder how many of you would lose as much of our time away from our business as Wilbert Bonney does — to my own knowing Wilbert spent most of his time with your sons out on the baseball diamond. I think some times we really don't realize how much the boys get out of playing with other boys — it you don't believe me show up at the next game and take a look at the support — These boys are the men of the future in our community and of all the contributions they may make we for sure want fair

Trying To Locate 1,500 Widows Of Confederate Veterans - Pensions

Congressman Graham A. Barden said today the Veterans Administration has requested his assistance in trying to locate an estimated 1,500 widows of Confederate veterans believed to be entitled to federal pensions.

The request was made by Sumner G. Whittier, Administrator of Veterans Affairs, who told Congressman Barden of VA's problem in trying to identify the widows, who for the first time are eligible for VA pensions under signed Public Law 85-245.

The new law also provides pensions for the two living Confederate veterans, Walter W. Williams of Franklin, Texas, and John Salling of SLANT, Virginia. Both men have been contacted by VA field representatives and assisted in filing their claims.

The widows, however, present another problem, Congressman Barden explained. Only those Southern States which pay similar benefits have partial rolls of Confederate beneficiaries. The United States has no official records on these beneficiaries and, since the benefits are not automatic, the widows will have to fill out application forms which may be obtained in person or by letter from any VA office.

Soil Bank Payment To Duplin Co. Farmers Totals $476,589.59 In '58 Grain Acreage In Program Declines

Vernon H. Reynolds gave a stern warning to Duplin Farmers today to take care and follow instructions when using insecticides to poison tobacco.

"I do not want to scare farmers," Reynolds, County Agent, said, "But I would like to see them take all necessary precautions when putting out poisons to control tobacco worms and prevent a possible death."

He points out that "All insecticides are poisons." Some are much more toxic to the insect than to the higher animals and may be relatively safe for man. Others are equally toxic to both insects and higher animals and this requires more careful handling. "All insecticides can be used safely if the proper precautions are taken," he said.

Injury from insecticides may not always be immediate. Chronic injury from continued exposure to sublethal quantities may cause permanent damage to the liver and kidneys. In other words, toxic effects from insecticides can be built up in man's system. Research shows that weatable powders and emulsifiable concentrates are more dangerous to handle than dusts because of the higher percentage of toxic in the material. Emulsion forms are especially dangerous because they are absorbed more readily by the skin. Regardless of the insecticide, wash off any material as soon as it is spilled on the skin. Some materials are to be mixed and applied only with rubber gloves and a respirator. Reynolds urges "Observe labels and cautions given on the insecticide container."

It will take only 1-500 of an ounce of parathion to kill an average man of 150 pounds. This amounts to about two drops of the technical material. A Duplin baby near Beulaville died about two years ago from drinking a drop or two of Endrin from a can which had been used and discarded on the trash pile. DDT, which is considered relatively safe, would require less than 1-7 of an ounce to kill a man if swallowed. If any insecticide is swallowed, vomiting should be induced by giving a mixture of warm, soapy or salty water. A doctor should be called immediately. Duke Hospital, in Durham, now has a poison control center available with expert physicians in the work. If called, they can give specific treatment for particular insecticides to the local doctor if a person by accident gets too much of any insecticide in his system.

THE Minister's Desk

By D. E. Parkerson, Warsaw

Morbus Sabbaticus, or Sunday Sickness, is a disease peculiar to church members. The symptoms vary but these are characteristic: 1. It never interferes with the appetite. 2. It never lasts more than twenty-four hours. 3. No physician is ever called. 4. It is becoming fearfully prevalent in our country. 5. It is becoming fearfully pre-ventive in our country. It comes on every Sunday, no symptoms are felt on Saturday night; the patient sleeps well and wakes feeling well; eats a hearty breakfast, but about church time the attack comes on and last until the morning church services are over. Then the patient feels easy and eats a hearty dinner. In the afternoon he feels much better, is able to take a walk and read the Sunday papers; he eats a hearty supper, but about church time he has another attack and stays at home. He wakes up Monday morning feeling fine and does not have any symptoms of the disease until the following Sunday. Remedy: "Be not deceived, God is not mocked."

Tar Heels Are Wasting Great Wealth Of Water

North Carolinians are letting an untold wealth of water slip undisturbed down their streams, the State Board of Water Commissioners said today.

An average of 29 billion gallons of water flows down the streams every day on its way to the oceans representing a potential supply many times greater than the state's entire water needs for many years to come.

Actually, because of a lack of sufficient development, the supply of stream water Tar Heels can depend upon is only a fraction of the 29-billion gallon average. The dependable supply amounts to a little less than 2 billion gallons a day, which is the total of water in the minimum flow of streams during dry periods. This does not mean, the Board explained, that at any given time the total of water in all the streams will amount to only 2 billion gallons, since the lowest flows do not necessarily coincide; it does mean that this is all the dependable supply that can be figured for demands which are continuous the year-round.

Although stream flows this year are exceptionally high, it doesn't take a long memory to know that the situation can be vastly different. Minimum flows did occur in a large number of the state's streams during the drought years of 1954 through 1956.

The flow figures were developed by the Board in a study of water resources and needs which will serve as a basis for legislative recommendations to Governor Hodges and the General Assembly.

The totals are based on records of stream flow obtained under a cooperative program of the U. S. Geological Survey and the State Department of Conservation and Development. They were computed from the records of gaging stations nearest the mouth of each river, plus the yield of measured tributaries, if any, below the stations.

"The Board by no means would contend that all of the high flow of our streams could be trapped for use, as that would be economically unfeasible," commented General J. B. Townsend of Greensboro, chairman of the Water Commissioners. "Nor would all the flow be needed."
