Bell-Simmons Law Suit Appears To Have Headed For Long Session

It was remoured around Kenansville Wednesday afternoon and night that attorneys for Mrs. Dora Betty Bell in the $50,000 law suit against Leroy Simmons had offered to compromise the suit for $1,500.

Simmons, who was contacted late Wednesday night, said he had been approached and told that the plaintiff would accept $1,500 as a compromise. He said, however, that he "will not compromise the issue" and will let it go to the jury.

At press time, attorneys for the plaintiff could not be contacted for a statement. They were in the court room.

It now appears that the case will definitely extend into next week.

Mrs. Bell, who is suing Simmons for $50,000 for damages for allegedly giving slanderous and defamatory remarks to reporters Paul Barwick and Charles Clay, has denied on the witness stand that she ever told Simmons the three-man investigating committee from the Farm Bureau composed of Taft Herring, Eugene Carlton and Arthur Whitfield, and Sheriff Ralph Miller that her desk drawer in the ASC office had been broken into and that Farm Bureau records were missing.

At press time Mrs. Bell was still on the stand.

In the original story, which appeared in the New and Observer and Duplin Times on October 13, 1958, it was said by Simmons that he went to the ASC office to check with Mrs. Bell, who was secretary-treasurer of the Duplin Farm Bureau, as to why Home Demonstration women in the County had not been paid for helping with the Farm Bureau drive and why there were so few persons at the kick-off meeting in Kenansville. When he arrived there, Simmons said, he was advised for the first time that the records of the Farm Bureau were missing and that accounted for the women not being paid and the few people at the kick-off meeting.

A committee was named by Simmons Farm Bureau president (committee named above) to check into the matter. They found probably case and turned the matter over the Sheriff Miller, who also investigated the matter.

At the time the Farm Bureau records went missing, Mrs. Bell was serving in the dual capacity as ASC office manager in Duplin and Farm Bureau Secretary-Treasurer.

There is not way of telling just when the trial will end. It could be that it will end suddenly or that it will go on for several days.

The Judge trying the case is Q. K. Nimocks, Jr., of Fayetteville.

DUPLIN GETS $48,138.81 FROM POWELL FUND

Checks totaling $48,138.81 were mailed by the State Highway Commission on October 1 to the 9 eligible municipalities of Duplin County participating in all-occation of Powell Bill Funds.

The Powell Bill, passed by the General Assembly in 1951, authorizes the setting aside of 1/2 cent from the regular 6 cent tax on each gallon of gasoline, in an effort to aid municipalities in the maintenance of non-system streets. All Powell Bill funds are allocated in cash to active incorporated towns which are eligible and qualified for improvements on their non-highway system streets.

Allocation of the Powell Bill funds is made proportionately to the eligible municipalities, half on the basis of population and half on the basis of relative non-system mileage.

The Powell Bill allocations for each of the towns of Duplin follows: Beaulville $4,796.32; Calypso $3,878.15; Faison $4,457.75; Kenansville $3,072.55; Magnolia, $3,287.92; Rose Hill $6,454.75; Teachey $870.27; Wallace $12,021.78; Warsaw $9,299.91.

During 1951 — the first year of the Powell Bill existence a total of $4,543,096.20 was allocated to the 386 eligible municipalities. This figure has increased over the years to $6,477,457.37 for 407 participating municipalities in 1958.

Sweet Potato Price Lowered By Scratches

It's sweet potato digging time once again.

Farmers throughout Eastern North Carolina are beginning to make plans to harvest their sweet potato crop and send it to market or store it for home use. The important thing now is to keep the crop in before a killing frost comes one night and hits the sweet potato crop a severe blow.

Henry Covington, N. C. State College Sweet Potato specialist, says that farmers should keep in mind that sweet potatoes never mature and that they should be dug when there is the highest percentage of U. S. No. 1 potatoes in the field.

In order to determine this, it is best to take representative samples of the potatoes under view at several places in the field before beginning digging. "It usually takes about four and one-half months for the sweet potatoes to reach a U. S. No. 1 size," Covington said.

At a demonstration at Magnolia, he pointed out that it is absolutely wrong for farmers to "heep row" sweet potatoes when harvesting. Any bruise will show up and the market price will be decreased. He also stressed the importance of having a full pack in order to keep the potatoes from rubbing each other in transit to market.

"When you harvest sweet potatoes you should wear gloves and place each potato in the basket — not throw it or drop it in the basket Covington said. "Finger nail scratches will show up and down go the prices."

Farmers who are growing sweet potatoes for market should keep in mind that only U. S. No. 1 potatoes should be marketed and that they should be graded strictly according to regulations. A No. 1 potato is one which is not less than one and seven-eighths inches in diameter nor larger than three and three-fourths inches in diameter at the largest point. The length cannot be less than three and one-half inches.

Helene Scaress But Was Kind

Hurricane Helene proved to be less of a monster than she was heralded, leaving extensive minor damage but little major destruction. Red Cross surveys Sunday revealed.

Survey teams checking coastal and adjoining counties of the Carolinas from Charleston north to Elizabeth City reported a total of only 3 dwelling destroyed, 54 major damage, but more than 3,000 with some degree of minor damage, mostly roof damage. High water damage or destroyed piers in several locations, and 10 public buildings mostly in beach areas, were badly damaged or destroyed and 45 have minor damage. Thirty farm buildings have some degree of damage, 10 are destroyed.

Hurricane Helene, with winds up to 125 miles per hour, forced evacuation of most beaches from Charleston to the Outer Banks. More than 9,000 refugees from beaches and low-lying areas flooded to 78 shelters and feeding stations set up by the Red Cross, with particularly heavy sheltering in the Southport, Wilmington and Brunswick county areas. Most shelter staffs included nurses or first aid rs. Red Cross nurses reported 8 persons hospitalized in Onslow and Craven counties; the toll of storm injured was light, not more than a dozen, records indicate.

At the light of the emergency the Red Cross had dispatched more than 40 disaster and field staff to the threatened communities to help chapters provide mass shelter, and food and nursing care for evacuees coming in from danger spots. A staff of caseworkers and building advisors are working with local chapters this week in family assistance.

Reports from Beach Property owners around Duplin County are that the damage was not too great but for loss of shingles damages to windows and screens. However some lost the entire roofs of their cottages.

Bill Taylor's Tigers Travel To Burgaw Friday Night

The Bulldogs of Wallace-Rose Hill defeated the James Kenan Tigers 19-0 last Friday night in a non-conference game. The Bulldogs are members of the Coastal Plain Class AA-C Conference. Wallace - Rose Hill plays the Dunn Green Waves this Friday night in Dunn.

Coach Bill Taylor's fighting and determined Tigers fought an extremely excellent Bulldog team on even terms most of the first half last Friday night before bowing to the undefeated Bulldogs. Wallace - Rose Hill was only able to muster two drives and short ones at that in the first half with the Tigers stopping one of them on the 20 deep in Kenan territory. In the first quarter the Bulldogs were forced to kick on Kenan's 48-yard line. The ball traveled down to about the Tiger eight where it was fumbled and Big Mac Horrell pounded on it. Two plays later Quarterback Leroy Maready sneaked it over for the score. Horrell's kick was wide & Wallace - Rose Hill led at the quarter 6-0. Late in the same period the Tigers fighting desperate to get back the tally marched deep into Bulldog territory but the big Wallace - Rose Hill line stopped the drive short of a TD.

About the middle of the second quarter Fullback Roy Cavanaugh raced around his own right end 65-yards to score but a penalty nullified the score and the Bulldogs lead at half time
