Baseball Practice Starts at James Kenan; Open With W-RH
The James Kenan Baseball season gets underway on March 24th against the strong Wallace-Rose Hill Bulldogs. Coach Bill Helton of the Tigers only has seven regulars returning from last year.

James Kenan started practice this week on a poor and wet field in Warsaw where all home games will be played this year. As you all know the old basketball diamond in Warsaw is in very poor shape, but the home games will be played there this season.

Next year the field out at James Kenan will be ready; it is looking mighty good now with the grass but it is just not sound enough for this baseball season.

The following players have reported from last year's club: Jackie Benton, catcher, Colin Quinn, first base, Bill Straughan, second base, David Benton, short stop, Allen Wabab, third and pitcher, Pepsi Merritt, second and pitcher, James Cavenaugh, outfield, and Charles Lockamy, pitcher. Coach Helton named several promising players coming up this year, such as Donnie Ezzell, and Bobby Bizzell, but he added "just don't have any idea who will be out until we can get on the field", meaning that water is still standing on the diamond.

The James Kenan schedule for 1959 is as following:

March 24	Tuesday	Wallace-Rose Hill	Home
March 27	Friday	B. F. Grady	Away
March 31	Tuesday	Wallace-Rose Hill	Away
April 3	Friday	Clinton	Away

Jasper Harper Fatally Injured Duplin's Third Highway Fatality

Jasper Harper, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thurman C. Harper of Albertson, Rt. 1, was instantly killed when his 1957 Chevrolet automobile ran out of control and overturned near the Durwood

Price store on Highway 111 on Saturday afternoon. Harper was crushed under his car. Harper was a graduate of the B. F. Grady School, class of 1958 and since that time had been doing Mission work in the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, in the State of Virginia. He was a member of the Albertson branch of that faith.

Harper was on his way home for a few days rest, and in Raleigh had picked up Jimmy Southerland and Carlyle Herring, Carolina students. Both of the boys were former B. F. Grady graduates who were enroute to their homes for the weekend. (The Southerland and Harper homes are little more than a mile apart.)

Just after crossing the Wayne-Duplin County line, it was reported that Harper lowered a window of his car and said, "I want to get a breath of Duplin County Air." It was then that the car went out of control and overturned.

Investigating state Highway Patrolmen E. C. Wray and Willie Rogers said there was no indication of excessive speed. This was Duplin County's third highway fatality this year.

Funeral services were held from the Albertson Church of Latter Day Saints at 3:00 P. M. on Wednesday afternoon, conducted by Mormon elders, and burial was in Pine Lawn Memorial Park near Kinston.

Surviving besides his parents are the following brother and a sister: Marland of Murray, Utah, Capt. Denver of the U. S. Army, Alford of Wilmington, Kenneth of the home and Mrs. Jimmy Deaver of Kinston.

FARM HOUSING LOANS STILL AVAILABLE DUPLIN CO. FARMERS

In recent months, several farm families in Duplin County have realized their ambition of owning and living in a modern home and enjoying the facilities of a modern kitchen, bath and central heat. They are among the many farm families who have taken advantage of the Farmer Home Administration Farm Housing loan.

Contrary to popular belief, the Farm Housing loan can be used for purposes other than constructing new homes. Some of these uses are to improve or remodel, alter, or replace dwellings and other farm buildings as well as new farm service buildings. The complete cost of a water supply system and modernizing a home by installing modern kitchen, adding bath and other rooms can be paid through a Farm Housing loan.

Many farm families in our area have found needed credit on long terms unavailable to them for the purpose of constructing farm dwellings on their rural property. In most cases, this is due to already existing debts against the farm or the small size of the farm. Many large home mortgage lending companies hesitate to make loans in certain areas due to resale value, plus the demand for this type of money in large metropolitan areas. For those families who find this to be true and are unable to borrow money for needed buildings on their farms on reasonable terms, then the Farm housing loan is available to them.

The applicant is expected to furnish detailed building plans from any source he desires. Farmed. Continued On Back

M. H. Barr Men's Shop Formally Opens, Thursday, March 19

M. H. Barr has announced plans to open the M. H. Barr Men's Store in Warsaw on March 19. The new establishment owned and operated by Barr is located between the Duplin Theatre and Page Home Appliances on Railroad Street.

Barr is no new-comer to Warsaw and is well known in the dry goods merchandising field. Having been an employee of A. Brooks Department Store for 25 years before purchasing a 45 per cent interest in the store nine years ago, he has had wonderful years of experience and is well qualified for his new venture. The A. Brooks Department Store was sold to the R. M. Fowler chain in October.

The new store which Barr is opening equals any men's clothing store in Eastern Carolina. It is finished in every small detail. The fixtures, lighting and color scheme all blend perfectly to give an atmosphere to suit the taste of the most scrupulous men and still maintains the friendliness to satisfy every customer.

The store is well stocked and ready for the big opening on Thursday morning, March 19. It carries a full line of Griffin and Clipper Craft Suits, Hickock Belts and jewelry. Arrow shirts, underwear and handkerchiefs, men's luggage, and everything for the well dressed man.

Register on Thursday, Friday and Saturday for free prizes. The drawing will be held Saturday night at 8:00.

Goodwill Dinner At Beulaville

Fun, frolic, good food and laughter would most adequately describe the goodwill dinner which the Kinston Chamber of Commerce and the Kinston Merchants Association, held in Beulaville on Tuesday night in the School Cafeteria.

Charles McCullers, general manager of the Chamber of Commerce of Kinston, was as usual the "witty, Master of Ceremonies" and kept everything moving at a lively pace. He introduced Kersey Smith, president of the Chamber of Commerce, who expressed his appreciation to the businessmen of Beulaville, which was responded to very graciously by Gordon Muldrow, Mayor of Beulaville, who welcomed the businessmen of Kinston and the men of Beulaville and surrounding areas.

Brief remarks were offered by Chairman R. F. (Bob) Grady of the Goodwill Dinners Committee; R. S. (Dutch) Witherington, Kinston tobacco sales supervisor.

Disposal Pits On Poultry Farms Can Cut Disease And Up Income

Millions of dollars are lost annually in North Carolina through poultry disease.

The outbreak of Newcastle disease in 1958 is a current graphic example of what disease can mean when someone is lax in his responsibility to the economy of North Carolina.

This loss of money can be decreased in numerous ways, but it is felt among poultry specialists that if poultry disease spread in a locality can be eliminated; then, the loss of birds through disease will be greatly decreased.

A State statute says that all livestock and poultry must either be burned or buried. If caught disposing of such animals (such as throwing them into creeks, along road sides or in ditches) is classified as a misdemeanor, carrying a fine of $50 or 30 days in jail or both.

With North Carolina increasingly on the move in the poultry industry (broilers, eggs and turkeys) is become increasingly important that proper disposal of all dead birds be made.
