Approximately 28 per cent of the dairy cows in North Carolina were artificially inseminated in 1934.
Farmers can kill two birds with one stone by applying nitrogen side dressing and a weed control at the same time.
Experts estimate that with the technology now available the average per acre yield of cotton in North Carolina can be double-justice, goodness, and brotherhood.

MILK cows will consume 300 to 350 pounds of green grass daily when the supply and quality are maintained. This intake supports daily production levels of 40 to 60 pounds of milk according to Purdue University scientists.

You can build a better range shelter

Pressure-Created wood

Planning to build a new cattle shelter? You can do a fine job yourself, using your regular farm labor, if you work from your state agricultural college approved plans and build with clean pressure-treated lumber.
Pressure-treating with creosote makes wood virtually impervious to rot and decay, even when used in or near the ground. The deteriorating effects of weather - heat, cold, rain and sunlight - have little effect on pressure-treated wood.
For long life, with minimum maintenance - build with pressure-treated wood. For efficient design - build from approved plans. We'll be glad to help you set both.
