What The October 27 State-Wide Bond Vote Means In North Carolina

The following editorial is from the Chapel Hill Weekly of Monday, Oct. 5, 1959.

On Tuesday, Oct. 27, the voters of North Carolina will be asked to vote on "A" bill to be entitled an act to authorize the issuance of bonds of the state to provide state institutions and agencies and state aid to community colleges and for local hospital construction.

Or in more simple language, the act is known as "Capital Improvement State Voted Bond Act of 1959."

The act, divided into several sections, will provide money for the capital improvements of a great number of state institutions.

If this act is passed, every person in the state will stand to gain from it, for it will provide for a number of public programs.

We, of the University community, of course are particularly interested in what the bill provides for the University.

If the act is passed, money will be provided for the University for the following projects:

- Renovation of laboratories in Venable Hall, $140,000.
- Geology and geography building, $750,000.
- Addition to Swain Hall, $425,000.
- Addition to Hill Hall, $485,000.
- Botany Building, $75,000.
- Foreign Language Building, $750,000.
- Additional equipment for the Physics Building, $65,000.
- Dormitories for 700 students (50 per cent of cost), $875,000.
- Classroom space for school of Public Health, $90,000.
- New School of Public Health Building, $1,000,000.

This totals $5,330,000 for improvements at the University.

The largest single item here is for a new School of Public Health Building. If that is approved, this new building will be erected across Pittsboro Road from Memorial Hospital, near the School of Pharmacy building, which is now under construction.

Naturally, a building of this type needed by the School of Public Health cannot be erected for one million dollars. The federal government has come to the aid of the University in this particular building.

Congress has voted some $500,000 for the construction of the new School of Public Health. However, the University will not receive this half million dollars in federal funds if the people of the state do not cast a favorable vote for the bond issue.

While all of the projects covered by the bond issue act are worthy, none, perhaps, are as badly needed as the new building for the School of Public Health.

At the present time, the Public Health School is housed in 10 different buildings on the campus. Many of those 10 buildings are poorly suited for teaching and laboratory work.

Among these 10 buildings there are included temporary wooden buildings erected by the Armed Forces during World War II. Quonset huts and one department of the School of Public Health is housed in the old Water Works Building behind Phillips Hall.

This building was erected in 1893 and abandoned by the water works a few years later because it was found to be inadequate.

It is to the interest of every person, not only in Chapel Hill, but throughout the state, to do all in his power to see that each voter goes to the polls on Tuesday, Oct. 27, and casts a favorable vote for this bond issue.

TIMES SPORTS By Joe Costin

James Kennan Downs Burgaw, Taylor's ability to prepare his team for an opponent. The Sampson County team has been playing teams of AA caliber mostly and although they do not have a good record for the season could be a tough opponent if taken too lightly.

Coach Taylor and his staff showed good sportsmanship this past Friday night before perhaps the largest homecoming crowd ever when instead of running up a huge score against a completely outclassed Burgaw team he used his entire bench including many freshmen to give these boys some game experience. The varsity only played the first quarter and part of the third period which gave reserve fullback Joe Allen Edwards the thrill of scoring his first touchdown against a varsity team and this honor and thrill was also shared by sophomore halfback Billy "Rabbit" Vana who scored on a beautiful (continued on back)

After Market Closes Farmers Must Return Tobacco Marketing Card To ASC Office Within Thirty Days

Farmers in Duplin County are reminded that they are to return their tobacco marketing cards to the Duplin County ASC in Kenansville not later than 30 days after the close of the tobacco market.

Rufus Elkes, Duplin ASC office manager said today that the best thing a farmer can do is to return it to the office the day he completes selling his tobacco in order not to forget it.

The penalty for not returning the tobacco marketing card to the local ASC office within 30 days after the market closes is complete loss of the farmer's tobacco allotment. The acreage is reduced to zero and it takes a great deal of effort to have the tobacco acreage reinstated.

Elkes points out that if the card is not returned within 30 days after the close of the market the farmer has to present all bills of sale in order to get the acreage allotment reinstated.

So, Mr. Farmer, return your tobacco marketing card now to your local ASC office.

Farmers With Choice "A" Cotton Plan Getting More Money For Bale Of Lint

With the harvesting of the 1960 cotton crop well underway, Horace Godfrey, State Administrative Office of ASC, today issued a step by step instruction program for producers of Choice "A" cotton to realize the greatest benefits from their production. He also points out that this is a new cotton program being tried for the first time and results up to now indicate that producers with Choice "A" cotton allotments are realizing more money for their cotton in the open market. Choice "A" cotton allotments are a realization of $10 to $15 more per bale than if their cotton is sold in the open market. Choice "A" cotton allotment is an allotment selected by the producer prior to last March 16 and planted in compliance with the allotment.

The Choice "A" cotton is supported only by direct purchase by purchasing agencies for CCC or through the ASC county office. The support price for Choice "A" cotton is 80 per cent of parity, and amount to 35.11 cents per pound for 1 inch staple middling cotton in Western North Carolina, with corresponding increase for better grades and longer staple length.

Godfrey says that to participate in the Choice "A" purchase program has been made relatively easy for the cotton producers. He points out that the producer should follow these steps: Have the cotton ginned, sample taken, make arrangements for the cotton to be placed in approved warehouse. He takes his Smith-Doxey cotton classing card, when returned, and warehouse receipt to an approved purchasing agency. The purchasing agency completes the necessary documents and pays the farmer for the cotton.

Purchasing agencies and approved warehouses have been set up by the CCA conveniently located to all cotton producers in the State. A list of purchasing agencies and approved warehouses is maintained in each ASC office in North Carolina.

HOG CHAMP!

C. E. Best of Warsaw, Et. 1, was a very happy man on Wednesday morning when he learned that his hog had won first place in the age group, and reserve champion against all age groups at State Fair this week.

Best entered a certified meat type spotted Poland China hog. He raised the champ himself. The big eleven month old, weighed 550 pounds. However, Best told me that they are not judged by weight, but by fullness of hams fullness of sides and a thousand and one things by which a pig is judged. Best had to come home and look after his small pigs but will be back on Friday to see about his Champion.

Hogs in this contest are from the entire United States and not just North Carolina hogs.
