Farmers Urged To Be Cautious In Use Of Chemicals This Year On Fresh Vegetables And Fruit

Farmers throughout this area are being cautioned before the production season begins to be careful and accurate in their application of chemicals this year for the control of weeds, insects and diseases in crops.

William H. Phillips, Inspector with the U. S. Food and Drug Administration out of Baltimore, Maryland, said today that "inspections will be made this year as in the past to make sure that vegetables and berries produced in the State do not carry too much residual of chemicals which can be harmful to consumers."

He points out that producers should heed the warning which was given last year through the experience of the cranberry industry when a portion of the cranberry crop was seized because of improper use of a particular chemical.

"We are trying to prevent anything such as the cranberry situation from happening again," Phillips said. "Therefore, we are urging farmers to be careful in their application of all chemicals on their produce."

All farmers are urged to read labels on packages containing the various chemicals and to follow instructions. It is pointed out that under law the proper application time and dosage are printed on the bags containing chemicals which are used for weed, insect and disease control.

"If instructions governing application are followed," Phillips said, "there will be no trouble. All of the produce will measure up to regulations."

Two examples are given with the use of Parathion in cucumbers and strawberries.

In cucumbers, the material is not to be applied before vining and within 15 days of harvest. If this practice is followed, then, the cucumbers will not contain too much residual of parathion and thereby pass regulations set down by law.

In strawberries it is recommended that four-tenths of one pound per acre of parathion be used within 14 days of harvest. If the chemical is applied, for example, within seven days of harvest, too much of the chemical will be on the berries at harvest and thus stand a chance of being rejected by the U. S. Food and Drug Administration.

Stress is placed upon the fact that if one lot of North Carolina strawberries or cucumbers or any vegetable or fruit is rejected because of improper application of a chemical, the sale of the entire crop from North Carolina will be affected.

James Miller, of Beulaville, Heads John Larkins Campaign In Duplin Co.

James Miller, prominent Duplin County merchant from Beulaville, has accepted the position as Chairman of John Larkins' Campaign for Governor of North Carolina for 1960.

Miller, who has been active in the Democratic Party in Duplin for many years, said in accepting the chairmanship of Larkins' campaign in Duplin, "I feel that John Larkins is by far the most qualified man for Governor of North Carolina. He has represented the people well in the past, he has served on all of the State's major committees, and has been the most active Democrat in the Democratic Party for many years."

He further added, "Therefore, I feel that I can support and work for John Larkins without reservations. He is from our locality and that is another good reason why we, in my opinion, should support Larkins for Governor of North Carolina."

Speaking further of Larkins' qualifications, Miller points out that Larkins has been chairman of the following committees of the North Carolina General Assembly: Public Utilities, Public Roads, Public Committee, Unemployment Compensation, Banks and Currency and during 1951 and 1953 headed the all important Appropriations Committee.

Miller not only has been active in the Democratic party in Duplin County, but is also a leader in public and civic life in the Beulaville community.

He is a charter member of the Beulaville Lions Club and is currently serving as the club's President. He is a past Master of the Beulaville Masonic Lodge. Miller is a member and Elder of the Hallsville Presbyterian Church where he has held many offices, including Sunday School Superintendent.

He is the owner of Miller's Hardware, in Beulaville. He is one of the merchants who worked toward securing a recent industry for Beulaville.

Miller is married to the former Fannie Mae Nethercutt, of Beulaville. They have two children, Carol, 16; and Jimmy, 12 years.

Mrs. Louise W. Fussell

Mrs. Fussell Of Rose Hill Sponsored For State "Teacher Of Year"

Mrs. Louise Whitfield (W. H.) Fussell, who has been named "Teacher of the Year" at Rose Hill Elementary School and who has won out in the District II contest, is being entered in the State "Teacher of the Year" Contest by the Rose Hill Woman's Club.

"It is with pride that we submit Mrs. Fussell as a candidate for the State teacher award," a spokesman for the Rose Hill Woman's Club asserted.

Mrs. Fussell's qualifications were summed up as follows.

Louise Whitfield Fussell was salutatorian of her senior class at Clinton High School, Clinton. She attended Flora Macdonald College and Appalachian State Teachers College. She holds a Class A North Carolina Teaching Certificate.

Mrs. Fussell has taught a total of eighteen years, sixteen of which have been in the Rose Hill Elementary School.

Mrs. Fussell has a great faith in her boys and girls. She loves children and they love her. She has a keen interest in them and encourages them to do their best work. She expects them to work to the maximum of their ability and takes into consideration the fact that each child is a different individual and does not learn at the same rate. Special groupings and work are provided for the different abilities.

Mrs. Fussell organized the Girl Scouts in Rose Hill and served as leader for a number of years. She is a member of the Duplin County Library Commission and has served, without remuneration, as librarian of the Rose Hill Community Memorial Library for approximately seven years. She is an active charter member of the Duplin County Mentally Retarded Association.

A past president of the Rose Hill Woman's Club, Mrs. Fussell has a keen interest in community, state and national affairs. She was chosen "Club Women of the Year" for outstanding work. She is an active member of her local, state and national teacher organizations. She is a life member of the National Education Association; a member of the North Carolina Classroom Teachers Association; a member of the Duplin Unit of the North Carolina Education Association; a member of the Duplin Unit of the Classroom Teachers and is now serving as president of this group. In 1955 Mrs. Fussell was invited to become a member of Delta Kappa Gamma, a national honor society for women educators, and was initiated into Iota Chapter of the State of Eta. This chapter was composed of teachers from Wayne, Duplin and Sampson counties. When Duplin and Sampson Counties joined together to form a new chapter a few years ago, Mrs. Fussell was one of the charter members of this new chapter, Eta Chapter. At the next meeting of this organization she will be installed as second vice president.

Mrs. Fussell is a member of the Rose Hill Methodist Church and has served in almost every capacity of a woman can serve in a Methodist Church. For approximately ten years she has been a teacher of a Young Adult Class. She is active in the Woman's Society of Christian Service, of which she is now serving as Spiritual Life secretary. She is also a member of the Church choir.

This fall Mrs. Fussell was called on to write a play to be given at the Rose Hill Elementary School as a culmination of the observance of American Education Week. She wrote a play — "Fun with Phonics" — which was given by the girls and boys of her classroom at a P. T. A. Meeting. Through songs, (in English and French), poetry and dance, she showed that phonics could be fun. The play was such a success that she was asked by the C. T. A. Program chairman to present the play to a group of Duplin County teachers. She was then asked to submit a copy of her play for publication in the Duplin County Handbook for School Personnel.

Mrs. Fussell has a daughter, Marsha Whitfield Fussell who is 16 and a junior Rose Hill.

To sum up my reasons for thinking that Mrs. Louise Whitfield Fussell is worthy of this high honor I would like to quote from the unknown author some of his "Beatitudes of a leader."

1. Mrs. Fussell has not sought the high places, but has been drafted into service because of her ability and her willingness to serve.
2. She is a person who knows where she is going. Why she is going, and how to get there.
3. She is a leader who knows no discouragement, who presents no alibi.
4. She knows how to lead without being dictatorial.
5. She seeks for the best for those she serves.
6. She leads for the good of the most concerned, and not for the personal gratification of her own ideas.

She has her head in the clouds but her feet on the ground.
