Garden Time

By M. E. Gardner
The hardships endured during the winter of 1950 will long live in the memories of all citizens in Ashe, Avery and Watauga Counties. I visited these counties the week end of June 6 and saw purple rhododendron, mountain laurel and flame azalea blooming in all their glory. The lush green of the grass and trees added to the enchantment. It was hard to believe the stories I heard and the pictures I saw of the rough winter.

While the "winter of '50" is fresh in the minds of mountain residents, it would be a good idea to plan now for a wind break and snow barrier to be planted this fall and winter. So many good plants are available for this purpose - white pine, hemlock and balsam.

I visited one home where they told me that the snow would have drifted "up to the roof" on the north and west sides of the house had they not been protected by a wind break of white pines. In fact, I believe I suggested this wind break when the house was built.

From the first to the fifteenth of July is a good time to take cuttings from most of the deciduous trees, shrubs and vines, and some of the evergreens. The cuttings should be made from new growth and should be about four to six inches long. Take them in the early morning and plant them immediately to prevent drying out.

You should have ready a cold frame, or some other suitable structure. If you use a wooden box or metal tub, be sure that they have good bottom drainage. The rooting mixture should be prepared by mixing clean coarse sand and peat three parts sand and one part peat, by volume. The sand provides good aeration and the peat holds moisture. Equal parts of sand and peat may also be used. Remove leaves from the lower half of the cuttings and place them about two inches apart in rows four inches wide, depending upon the type of cutting used.
